Politics—Politics—
4 Kinds of Prayers
Where's the Army?
We've Lent Too Much

—By Arthur Brisbane—

ORGANIZED LABOR has 20 planks ready for both party platforms. One calls for a five-day work week. Another calls for 2.75 beer, fully legalized.

It is safe to tell labor that it will NOT get 2.75 beer, or much of anything else that it asks. But, like the farmers, unions will get beautiful promises and a patting on the back that will make their chests stick out.

Clergymen of four religions will pray for the Republican brethren in Kansas City. An Episcopalian, a Catholic, a Jewish rabbi, and a Methodist preacher will ask heaven to help and enlighten. Nothing prevents Christian Scientists from giving the convention absent treatment. It may need it.

Unless very young, you remember Champ Clark's campaign song, "T'aint no difference if he is a hound, you got to stop kicking my dog around."

Champ Clark and Woodrow Wilson, who beat him, are both gone. And in this campaign we have two hounds, a Republican oil scandal hound and a Democratic graft hound. They will be kicked around considerably before the campaigns end.

"Our old cat and another one" applies to that army of farmers to march on Kansas City, 100,000 strong, to lay down the law about farm relief.

Only 14 farmers had arrived yesterday, and they must hurry back to attend to crops.

That's the disadvantage of isolated farming. Railroad men and great industrialists that gather at conventions or at Washington never have to hurry back. They have hired men to run the works while they help run the government.

London's Financial Times says: "America has lent too much money to Europe, and if money remains cheap in London, England will regain her old pre-eminence as banker of the world."

America's boyish financiers, silly enough to buy Russian bonds from Kerensky, are silly enough for anything.

Recently Europe has been lending in America at 7 per cent money that America lent to Europe at 3½ per cent. "The United States has been heavily overlending," says the British authority. Rather. We began it when we lent ten billions in a war that wasn't ours.

London's keen financiers watch for opportunities to dip into our markets.

British speculators expect a boom in Wall Street should President Coolidge be re-nominated again. And they think that quite likely. Everybody will know more about that tomorrow.

The Paris Temps, authoritative French newspaper, discovers a yellow plot to drive white races from Asia.

Japanese and Chinese are in collusion, according to the Temps, and while hostile on the surface, they are really united in their determination to keep Asia for Asiatics.

This country has no cause of complaint. We are determined to keep America for Americans.

Some farmers think they need a low tariff, but don't. Tariff

GOODWIN IN CONFERENCE WITH RUM COMMITTEE

Frank A. Goodwin, former registrar of motor vehicles, was closeted for more than an hour today with the legislative committee which has been investigating alleged dry law violations at the State House. Goodwin, who is counsel for Freeman Dickinson, original complainant to Governor Fuller, refused to tell what transpired at the meeting. It was understood, however, that he was pressing the committee for open hearings on the report turned in by commissioner of the department of administration and finance.

Kemptown, Colchester County, N. S., June 12 (AP).—The transatlantic monoplane Columbia passed over here at 1:55 P. M., eastern daylight time, this afternoon on its way from Roosevelt Field, N. Y., to Harbor Grace, N. F. At 1:20 P. M. it passed over Parrsboro, N. S.

FULLER SETS EXAMPLE IN PACIFIC FLIERS' FUND

Setting a splendid example to all citizens of the Commonwealth, Governor Alvan T. Fuller was the first to respond to the appeal of the Boston Evening American for a national fund to reward Harry Lyon and James Warner, American navigator and radio operator of the Southern Cross on its flight to Australia.

His letter endorsing the Hearst drive for a national purse for the intrepid American fliers was accompanied by a check for $25. The Hearst papers have started the fund with a contribution of $5000. The Governor's letter reads as follows:

June 1, 1928.

To the Flight Editor,
Boston Evening American,
Dear Sir:

I am very happy to improve the opportunity of enclosing a little check with my best wishes for the success of the fund the Boston Evening American is raising in connection with the national drive for the two pilots of the Southern Cross.

Cordially yours,
(signed) ALVAN T. FULLER.

High praise of the Hearst papers for starting a national fund for the two American fliers was voiced by many prominent Bostonians.

NO SUM TOO SMALL

PLEADS WITH JURY TO LET KNOWLTON GO FREE

Charging that one Commonwealth witness attempted to "sell Knowlton into the electric chair for $58.25," defense counsel, in final argument today, pleaded with the jury in Middlesex Superior Court to absolve Frederick Hinman Knowlton of the charge of murdering Marguerite Isabelle Stewart.

Atty. Driscoll, counsel for Knowlton, named Augustus E. Johnson of Natick as the Commonwealth witness. Johnson was the man who

Chance to Aid Purse For Fliers

Here is America's opportunity to honor the two American heroes of the Oakland-to-Sydney flight. Australia has voted $25,000 to Charles Kingsford-Smith and C. T. P. Ulm, the two pilots who took the Southern Cross across the Pacific, and they richly deserve it.

But no less remarkable were the parts played in this history-making flight by Capt. Harry Lyon and James Warner, both Americans. Without Lyon's incredible skill as a navigator, without Warner's unfailing ability at his radio set, the flight could not have been a success.

The Hearst newspapers believe these two Americans are worthy of reward, and have taken the lead in raising a purse for them by subscribing $5000.

At the same time every public-spirited citizen should shoulder his share of the plans for giving Lyon and Warner a reception such as their accomplishment deserves.

Send in your share of the purse to the Flight Editor of the Boston Evening American.

Stocks Crash on Squeeze Loan Talk

Trading facilities on the New York Stock Exchange were swamped today by a flood of selling orders, which carried prices of many issues down $5 to nearly $25 a share. So great was the volume of trading the ticker fell and hour behind the market.

Radio broke from $196.50 to below $170, closing at $171 for a net loss of $23.50.

Heavy withdrawals of cash from the call loan market by New York banks, without corresponding influx of money, raised the fear of a new "money squeeze" with all that that implies in a high-strung speculative market. Nervous speculators threw their stocks on the market.

Shortly after the opening of the Western markets, excited selling of

EXPELLED GIRL SUES WHEATON FOR $25,000

Charging conspiracy in her expulsion from Wheaton College on the eve of her graduation, Miss Bertha Ludwig seeks damages of $25,000 in a bill in equity, filed in Supreme Court, for which Bennett Sanderson was appointed master today.

Miss Ludwig names the dean and two students, who, she charges, "cherished ill will toward her."

According to the bill, charges were preferred against Miss Ludwig "for making noise in her room, absenting herself after 10 p. m., cutting church and burning incense in her room."

Marking a revolutionary step in public welfare legislation as far as Massachusetts is concerned, Governor Fuller today signed the so-called Thore bill setting up machinery to handle and distribute an old-age bequest fund for the care of aged and needy citizens.

1ST BALLOT WILL GIVE HIM 707

Kansas City, June 12.—Herbert Hoover will be the Republican nominee for President. He has at least 707 votes and may be nominated by acclamation.

The big delegations from Massachusetts and Pennsylvania were both put definitely into the Hoover column by action of delegation caucuses, and this pushes Mr. Hoover's pledged strength considerably past the 545 nominating mark.

"It's all off," said Senator J. E. Watson, conceding victory for Hoover.

Ex-Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois said: "It's Hoover."

New Jersey, Idaho, at least 60 New York delegates and many others quickly jumped onto the Hoover bandwagon.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES,

Convention Hall, Kansas City, June 12—The Republicans are going to the country in the 1928 campaign on the issue of general prosperity—and if Calvin Coolidge should be persuaded to again carry the standard so much the better.

This was the keynote sounded today by Senator Simon D. Fess of Ohio in opening the Republican national convention, which is beset with bitter and acrimonious struggles over candidates and platform.

Senator Fess did not actually propose the nomination of Mr. Coolidge, but neither did he take him out of consideration—he merely left wide open the door to the draft movement, should the convention desire to walk through it, by saying that Mr. Coolidge "appeared" to be set upon retiring, and that many of his friends believed so.

Mr. Coolidge's name was not mentioned by the Ohio keynoter until

"Queen of Diamonds" Stakes All ◆ In New Dash Over Seas ◆ In Race Against Hub Rival

"GOOD LUCK!"
Charles A. Levine, who loaned plane Columbia to Miss Boll for sea hop. He wished her "luck" at start. Plane is shown below.

'GOOD-BYE! WE'RE GOING!'
Daring aviatrix in cabin of her plane just before it left New York last week on first attempted hop to Newfoundland base. This flight was foiled by bad weather. Mabel is waving her friends good-bye.

"I'LL BE THE FIRST!"
Courage and confidence are two of Mabel's biggest assets. She is sure she will be the first woman to span Atlantic by air. She plans to beat Amelia Earhart, Hub aviatrix, now waiting chance to start.

"I'LL WEAR 'EM IN EUROPE!"
Mabel Boll loves her diamonds next to flying. She has arranged to have them rushed to Europe so she can wear them abroad once she has hopped the ocean by plane. Incidentally, she has promised to bare the "mystery" of her life as soon as she has "landed over there."

DARES DEATH FOR GLORY
Mabel Boll, the "Queen of Diamonds," who zoomed away from Roosevelt Field, N. Y., today bound for Harbor Grace on first leg of a transatlantic flight. She hopes to beat a girl rival across the seas.

MABEL BOLL STARTS ON HOP; HEADS FOR HARBOR GRACE

Fundy. It is roughly 500 miles from Harbor Grace.

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., June 12 (AP).—Miss Mabel Boll, who would like to be the first woman to cross the Atlantic by air, took off at 7:20 o'clock this morning (daylight time), in the monoplane Columbia for Harbor Grace, N. F., on her second attempt to essay the transatlantic crossing.

The monoplane, veteran of an ocean flight to Germany, was piloted by Captains Oliver Le Boutillier and Arthur Argles, American veterans of the British Royal Air Force. Aboard the plane also was Andrew Surrini, chief mechanic for Charles A. Levine, the plane's owner.

Only a few friends of the "Queen of Diamonds" were on hand. Among these, however, was her mother, Mrs. Josephine Boll of Rochester, N. Y., who kissed her goodby as she stepped into the plane.

Definite decision to make the flight today was not reached until about 4 o'clock this morning, when Levine received a weather report that indicated clear weather between here and Harbor Grace. Conditions over the Atlantic, however, were reported not so good and he said no attempt would be made to make a direct flight to Europe. Harbor Grace is about 1100 air miles from here.

The plane, loaded with about 350 gallons of gasoline, made a perfect takeoff after a run of about three-eighths of a mile. The runway from which Lindbergh, Byrd and Chamberlin took off on their successful flights to Europe had been repaired within the last few days especially for the flight.

Miss Boll appeared in excellent spirits as she started on the adventure on which she so long had set her heart. She waved cheerily to her friends and posed for the cameramen. She appeared delighted to be actually started on her way, as she has made no secret of the fact that she hoped to beat Miss Amelia Earhart, Boston aviatrix, across.

Miss Earhart, in the monoplane Friendship, has been held at Trepassey, N. F., for the last week, due to unfavorable weather.

SAY BANK MAN RAN AWAY WHEN THREATENED

A report that Amato Pescosolido, missing director of the Nonantum Bankers' Co. of Nonantum, closed by the bank commissioner, had fled after his life was threatened by an angry depositor, was prevalent in Newton today.

According to the story the man declared unless he received back $12,000 on deposit in the bank, he would shoot Pescosolido. He was quoted as adding that being a single man he would not mind going to the electric chair. The reported threatening took place Friday, and Pescosolido has not been seen in the vicinity since.

This story was being bruited around Newton as the local police took their first action in beginning a search for the missing banker after obtaining two warrants for his arrest.

The complaints, made by Dr. Alfred A. Amendola of Adams st., Newton, had nothing to do with conditions in the bank, but concerned transactions between the complainant and Pescosolido, who were associated in the Columbus Realty Co. of Newton.

The first complaint charges that Pescosolido forced an instrument purporting to be an order from the Columbus Realty Co., authorizing the payment to Pescosolido of $2000.

Levine in Wild Flight With His First Passenger

Curtiss Field, N. Y., June 12 (AP)—Charles A. Levine carried his first passenger aloft today and had almost as many hearts in the mouths of their owners as on that famous day last summer when he flew alone from Paris to London and made a landing such as Croydon had never seen before.

Today Levine skimmed a hangar roof, he overshot the field completely on his return, skimmed another hangar and then landed neatly as field attendants gulped and held their breath.

The passenger was Emil Burgin, commercial pilot, and he made no secret of what his feelings had been.

"I was scared," he said, "and I don't care who knows it."

The flight was made in a Fokker Universal, in which the passenger is separated from the pilot and is unable to take control in case of emergency. Levine flew over the Newark, N. J., airport, found it impossible to land there and returned, a distance of about 66 miles.

Levine left the ground in good shape but he gained altitude slowly and when he banked in cutting over a hangar roof it seemed for a moment as though the plane was sure to stall and crash The landing was full of thrills but was not so sensational as the one at Croyden where Levine bounced between earth and sky several times before he came to a stop.

figuring him for life, and narrowly escaping blinding him.

She was arraigned in Waltham court, where Dewar, swathed in bandages, reluctantly appeared as the complainant.

The girl pleaded guilty, but because of the seriousness of the charge it was rejected and she was held in $5000 bail until Thursday. At the request of the police Judge John M. Giggs held Dewar in $500 as a material witness. Miss Wells was unable to obtain bail and was taken to East Cambridge jail.

Dewar said he had known Miss Wells only about five weeks, and had not been very friendly with her, when, on Friday night, May 18, she drank acid outside his home because of her failure to see him.

She was taken to the Waltham Hospital, and after receiving treatment there, recovered.

Dewar said that on Friday night, June 8, the girl trailed him to Allston, forcing her way into a room in the Allston House, where he was talking to a man friend. According to the Watertown youth, Miss Wells locked the door, made accusations against Dewar, and then threatened to blind him.

She refused to unlock the door, with the result that the landlady called the Brighton police. The girl then opened the door and left.

Dewar said he went home some time later and found her in front of his house. He then retraced his steps and had reached the bridge on California st. when Miss Wells shrieked at him. Dewar said he stopped and turned, whereupon the girl threw the contents of a bottle at him. Yesterday morning Chief John F. Millmore of Watertown, who had learned of the affair, persuaded Dewar to take out a warrant for Miss Wells' arrest

PILGRIMS SEE FANEUIL HALL, BUNKER HILL

England "made a big [illegible]ake in the way she treated th[illegible] colony and had she be[illegible] more diplomatic she might have retained America," it was declared today at Faneuil Hall by the Rev. T. F. Gilmore, B. A., one of the British Congregational Pilgrims now visiting the Hub.

"But we are not a bit squeamish about visiting historical spots and being reminded of gloomy things that hapened in the past," the minister said.

Between their visits to Faneuil Hall, the Old State House and Bunker Hill, this detachment of 500 of the 1200 Pilgrims, commented that Boston bears a similarity to London and declared that, therefore, they feel much at home here.

The Pilgrims asserted also that the right-hand traffic system of America is a distinct improvement on the left-hand driving prevailing in England.

Exhibits at each historic place were explained to them, the entire party meeting at Bunker Hill. There the historic setting was explained in detail and instructions issued for the day's appointments.

Following the trips the delegates lunched throughout the city at their own convenience.

The chief event of the day was in the Hall of Flags at the State House, where the pilgrims heard "The Log of the Mayflower." A brief but impressive ceremony was prepared with Frank E. Bridgman, clerk of the House of Representatives, presiding. Reading of the log was in charge of Rev. Douglas Horton of Leyden Church, Brookline, in addition to an address by Rev. Ralph H. Rowse, secretary to the Boston Missionary Society.

Tonight the visitors will be entertained at suppers in 25 suburban churches, where welcoming programs are in store—the welcome of the Congregational Fellowship to visiting friends.

Tomorrow, the last day of the visit, starts with a trip to historic Plymouth Rock on special trains, leaving South Station at 8:45 and 8:48.

proven worthy and needy men 65 years and above and to women 60 years and over.

The legislation, in addition to the untiring efforts of Wendell P. Thore of Squantum, had the backing of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, labor organizations, Mayor Ralph S. Bauer of Lynn and Senator George M. Webber of East Bridgewater, chairman of the committee on pensions, and Lieut.-Gov. Frank G. Allen.

In commenting on the Governor's action today, Thore said:

"For nearly 15 years I have worked for a fund to provide for the care of the aged and needy. The idea of the fund first came to me from articles in the Hearst newspapers, coupled with the fact that many good citizens were leaving millions to be used for the common good. White gave $7,500,000, Parkman $5,000,000, and Davis of Brockton $1,000,000.

"The setting up of this bequest fund is a step in the right direction to substitute a pension system for the worthy needy and aged in place of the degrading poorhouse."

SON BATTLES FATHER OVER HERO'S WILL

With son pitted against father, a battle to probate an oral will made by their hero kin just before his death on the battlefields of France, opened today in Middlesex Probate court.

The will was made during a premonition of death on the part of First Lieut. Judson Gordon Martell of the 60th U. S. Infantry.

Charles Martell, of Somerville, the petitioner, produced a witness to his dead brother's dying statement in Edward A. Vosseler, now a Brooklyn, N. Y., attorney. Atty. Vosseler was first sergeant with Lieut. Martell.

Attorneys for Judson Martell, the father, bitterly opposed the petition.

"I want my mother and brother to get what little I have," Atty. Vosseler quoted the hero lieutenant today, "I don't want my father to get it. I think him dead, but I can't prove it."

Mrs. Martell died seven years ago, the court was told.

His former buddy told of the lieutenant's last statement, made a bare two hours before he fell, mortally wounded by a shell.

"I know I'm not coming back,' he quoted, "because it's bad luck to go over the top in the first day in the trenches.

Charles neglected to offer the oral will for probate, he told the court, his mother being comfortably fixed and receiving the hero's government insurance.

A year ago, however, the missing father appeared and the action followed.

MEXICAN FLIER, DOWN IN FOG, TO HOP OFF

Washington, June 13 (AP)—Ambassador Tellez of Mexico today instructed Capt. Emilio Carranza, who ended his Mexico City-Washington flight at Mooresville, N. C., early today on account of fog, to continue his flight to Washington as soon as conditions would permit.

Carranza told the ambassador he would inspect his plane and, if possible, take off for the nation's capital at once.

Mooresville, N. C., June 12 (AP)—Forced down here shortly before dawn this morning in an attempted non-stop flight from Mexico City to Washington, Capt. Emilio Carranza, young Mexican "Lone Eagle," today awaited the lifting of the fog before resuming his good will flight to Washington.

"But I guess the people in Washington won't be so glad to see me now," he told the Associated Press. "And my countrymen won't be so proud of me now."

His landing in the darkness here was an exhibition of skill, residents said. Capt. Carranza had been flying 18 hours and 20 minutes.

SAFETY DRIVE IS GOD-SEND TO MOTHERS

"The Safety Campaign conducted by the Boston Evening American during the month of May proved to be a God-send to the mothers of the North End," Miss Mary Nafmo, interpreter attached to the Medical Mission Dispensary of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Hull st., declared.

"Scores of these mothers, many of them unable to read or write English, have learned of the Boston Evening American's safety drive through friends or relatives who read this newspaper.

"Their response to the many appeals for safety printed in the American was most enthusiastic. In all sections of the district mothers speaking only their native Italian can be heard daily cautioning their children.

Miss Marion Hicks, a nurse who works among the people of the North End at the Medical Mission Dispensary, was another who praised the Boston American's safety drive.

"Statistics are cold bare facts that interest only a few people," she said, "but the statistics showing that not one child was killed by an automobile in Boston during May are of interest to every mother. I am convinced that the credit for this achievement is due to the thorough and painstaking manner in which the Boston American's safety drive was conducted."

FROM GAS DEATH SINGER IS SAVED

Viola Gridley, 32, singer in a Back Bay restaurant, narrowly escaped death by gas poisoning today in her apartment in Audubon rd.

The woman, who says she is subject to fainting spells, fell against a gas stove, opening five jets, and owes her life to the janitor, Walter Murphy, and Patrolmen John J. Crowley and Richard O'Meara of the Back Bay station.

According to her own story, she was ill and arose to procure a hot water bottle. As she fainted she had sufficient strength to ring the janitor's bell.

When Murphy arrived he found the apartment door on the first floor locked and obtained no response to his knocking. He unlocked the door with a master key and found the woman unconscious on the kitchenette floor.

WIFE BEATS UP GIRL IN COURT; ESCAPES JAIL

Indignant because her husband Leon Alfred of Medford st., Arlington, received 30 days, for striking Thelma McLean, a waitress, Mrs. Natalie Alfred leaped on the girl in East Cambridge district court today and attempted to beat her up.

After four officers had dragged the shrieking woman from her terrified prey, and something approaching order was restored in court, Judge Arthur P. Stone sentenced Mrs. Alfred to one day in jail for contempt.

The court then revoked the sentence. The husband appealed his own case.

As Judge Stone announced his finding in the case of Alfred, his wife, who was seated on one end of a short bench, turned and glared at Miss McLean on the other.

As her ire mounted she emitted a cry and sprang for the other woman.

Miss McLean attempted to retreat, but was not quick enough. Mrs. Alfred, although plump, was startlingly fast, and in two jumps she had one hand fast in the waitress' bobbed hair.

"I'll knock your block off," Mrs. Alfred shouted, but court officers and policemen by this time had gone into action.

The trouble started over a string of beads, according to the evidence. Miss McLean, who lives in the same apartment house, was loaned the beads by Mrs. Alfred, and in some way they were broken. The two women exchanged words, and then Alfred went to his wife's assistance, Miss McLean charging that he struck her.

MASSACHUSETTS DELEGATES, LED BY BUTLER, ALL FOR HOOVER

WILL VOTE FOR SECRETARY ON THE OPENING BALLOT

retary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon and William M. Butler, chairman of the national committee, spoke the words that assured victory for Hoover.

"I have not desired to do anything that might preclude and foreclose the possibility of continuing President Coolidge in office," said Butler.

"But I now will ask my alternate to vote in my place for Herbert Hoover, and I am satisfied that such a course will meet the approval of our beloved President.

"I am satisfied that it is satisfactory to the President for the good people of Massachusetts not to vote for him."

The delegation took no formal action, but Senator Frederick H. Gillett and other members said the entire 36 votes would go for Hoover.

In explaining his viewpoint Butler told the delegates the Massachusetts representatives had been in "an embarrassing position" because of their desire to see Mr. Coolidge renominated if he desired it or would accept it.

"But I feel certain that Mr. Coolidge will not consent to stand again," he said.

"I do not wish this statement here to be misconstrued. The President has taken no position toward any of the candidates, so far as I know, and I am simply stating my own opinion when I say I think our action would be satisfactory to him."

COX IS CHAIRMAN.

Charles L. Burrill inquired of Butler why newspaper reports had arisen that the delegation had been delivered at the last minute from President Coolidge to Hoover.

"We have been for Hoover all along," said Burrill.

Officers of the delegation elected are:

Chairman — Ex-Governor Channing H. Cox.

Secretary—Robert L. Whipple.

Committee on Resolutions—Senator Gillett.

Credentials—Loring B. Young.

Permanent Organization —Eben S. Draper.

Rules—Minnie R. Dwight.

"With Hoover as the nominee, we will have a hard fight in Massachusetts against Governor Smith, but we will win in November," said Cox after the meeting.

MELLON'S STATEMENT

In the Pennsylvania caucus it was Secretary Mellon himself who moved that the entire delegation vote for Hoover on the first ballot. The vote of the 79 delegates was unanimous.

Mellon made his motion at the end of a statement which he read to the delegates and in which he said that when he made his statement in Philadelphia a few weeks ago that of all the candidates that had presented themselves, Hoover came nearest to the Coolidge pattern, he was still hopeful that President Coolidge might be prevailed upon to stand again.

"At the time of our conference in Philadelphia, on May 12, it was still uncertain whether President Coolidge might be induced to accept a renomination," he said.

"Now, however, it has become clear that he will not do so. It, therefore seems wise to look for that nominee who will best carry forward the policies of the present administration, which have won the whole-hearted approval of the American people.

"As I said in Philadelphia, Mr. Hoover seems, of all the candidates, to best measure up to the high standards that we have set. My suggestion to my colleagues in the delegation is that we vote for him on the first ballot."

Neither Mellon nor Butler would admit having received any direct word from the White House. Butler said he was merely stating "my opinion."

Mellon, however, said that he based his opinion upon a conversation he had with President Coolidge shortly before he (Mellon) left Washington.

"I have never really felt that Mr. Coolidge would accept renomination," said Mellon. "In fact, I've thought he wouldn't for a long time."

The Hoover managers seized upon the Butler and Mellon statements and broadcast them through the city just as the delegates began to wend their way to the Convention hall to hear Senator Simeon Fess' keynote speech.

"It's all over," said the Hoover managers, and even the desperate, disappointed leaders of the anti-Hoover coalition were forced to agree with them.

"Hoover is away over," said ex-Congressman James W. Good, of Iowa, the Hoover generalissimo here. "He will be nominated before the first ballot is three-quarters over."

Senator-Designate William S. Vare of Pensylvania, who shares the leadership of the keynote delegation, immediately declared he gave "wholehearted endorsement to Mellon's announcement."

VARE IS HAPPY.

"I am happy," said the Philadelphia leader, "that the Secretary of the Treasury has put the stamp of approval on the candidate who, I believe, is the popular choice of the people of Pennsylvania. I believe the announced choice of the Pennsylvania delegation will be the choice of the delegates from all over the country, and I am sure we are nominating a man who will be triumphantly elected."

The effect of the Pennsylvania-Massachusetts decision, which carried 118 votes into the Hoover column in one surge, was quickly apparent.

Within 30 minutes after the news spread, it was reported that instead of New York casting 60 votes for Coolidge on the first ballot, as agreed at a caucus yesterday, those 60 votes will be cast for Hoover.

Thus, the Hoover band wagon started, and it promised to become filled before this convention is many hours old. Idaho jumped aboard with 11 delegates and New Jersey's 28 joined them.

The gloom in the camp of "the allies" who have struggled bitterly and desperately to obtain a blocking majority against the Cabinet candidate, was almost impenetrable.

OFFERS INVOCATION

Rt. Rev. S. C. Patridge, bishop of the diocese of Western Missouri, who formally opened the Republican national convention today in Kansas City with prayer.

CHEER MELLON AS CONVENTION IS OPENED

Convention Hall, Kansas City, June 12 (INS)—The Hoover bandwagon lumbered into Kansas City's convention hall today for the first session of the Republican national convention.

The floor was packed and the galleries jammed to suffocation when William M. Butler banged his gavel at 11:03 a. m. (1:03 p. m. Boston time).

Above his head and immediately behind him were two gigantic pictures—Abraham Lincoln and Calvin Coolidge. They were the only pictures in the vast hall.

"The hour of 11 o'clock having arrived," he said, sonorously, "and a quorum being present, the convention will be in order. Please stand while prayer is offered by Bishop S. C. Partridge, diocese of West Missouri, Episcopal church."

OPENS WITH PRAYER.

The bishop asked blessing upon the assemblage and for guidance in its labors.

The first outburst of enthusiasm came when Mme. Schumann-Heink, a mother who gave sons to both the German and American armies during the war, was introduced and led the assembly in the "Star Spangled Banner." A motherly figure, dressed in a pale green gown, she was heartily cheered.

"Now," said Butler, "the official photograph of the convention will be taken. Everybody please rise."

"Everybody sit down," shouted the official photographer, perched high in the rear of the hall.

There was a roar of laughter and all obeyed the photographer.

As Butler was presenting the temporary roll of the convention a ripple of applause started far back in the hall. It grew in volume as it swept forward, and in a twinkling most of the delegates were standing and cheering.

CHEERS FOR MELLON

Down the center aisle was walking Sec. of the Treas. Andrew W. Mellon. He seemed embarrassed by the interruption he had caused, for Butler was pounding savagely with his gavel, seeking to restore order.

The Pennsylvania section was in the first row, directly under Chairman Butler's nose. Mellon dropped into the first seat on the aisle and started reading a newspaper. Next to him was Governor John H. Fisher and next to Fisher was ex-Senator William S. Vare, both early Hoover backers.

The floor was noisy while Secretary Roy O. West droned out the official call. Butler again took charge and introduced Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio as temporary chairman, and keynoter. Governor Arthur M. Hyde of Missouri, Mrs. Leona Curtis Knight of Rhode Island and Governor C. C. Young of California escorted Fess to the platform.

Following Fess's speech committees were appointed by Butler.

'Dawes Is Logical 2nd Place Choice'--Mellon

By RALPH W. WHEATLEY,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

Kansas City, June 12—Vice-President Dawes' prospects for renomination soared high today when Secretary Mellon said he was the "logical candidate."

A meeting of the Pennsylvania delegation will be called soon, he said, to consider their stand on the vice-presidential nomination.

"I have not decided yet how I will stand on the vice-presidency, but Dawes is the logical candidate," Mellon said. It will be recalled that at the Cleveland convention Mellon more than anyone else was responsible for the nomination of the Chicago banker.

Leaders here believe that Dawes will accept the nomination, as Ed Clifford of Kensington, Ill., the Vice-President's home town, has set up a Dawes office and is going through the same maneuvers that he adopted at Cleveland, where he had charge of Dawes' campaign.

MAN SERVING LIFE TERM LOSES IN SUPREME COURT

The full bench of the Supreme Court has overruled the exceptions of Frank Crecorian, who was found guilty of robbing Mrs. Mae Price, robe mistress at the Wilbur Theater, of $200 at the Hotel Hollis on the night of May 31, 1925. Crecorian is now serving a life sentence at the State prison for the robbery. He was found not guilty on the charge of having killed Mrs. Price.

Crecorian in his exceptions claimed that having been acquitted on the murder indictment he could not be found guilty of robbery. Judge Braley, who wrote the opinion of the full court, says that Crecorian had a fair trial, and that the two cases are not identical.

FARM BLOC SENATORS TAKE FLING AT HOOVER

Kansas City, June 12 (INS)—The farm bloc group took a final parting shot at Herbert Hoover today as his nomination seemed imminent.

"If the powers that be have decided Hoover is to be nominated, it is quite fitting that the edict should come from 'Bil' Vare," said Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., Wisconsin insurgent. "I notice that Mellon issued his statement 12 hours after Vare named Hoover," Senator Blaine, his colleague, added.

"I think the Republican party is nominating the easiest candidate in its ranks," said Senator McMaster, Republican, of South Dakota.

"PRINCESS ALICE" HAPPY; 'T. R., JR.,' FOR DAWES' JOB

Kansas City, June 12 (INS)—One of the happiest individuals in Kansas City today was Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, "Princess Alice" of the Roosevelt administration. An ardent supporter of Herbert Hoover, Mrs. Longworth cheered the news that Pennsylvania and Massachusetts had pledged their delegation to him.

"Princess Alice" was suspected of another ambition—that of having her brother, Theodore Roosevelt, named as Hoover's running mate.

HOOVER DEMANDS CONSTRUCTIVE FARM PLANK

WANTS FARMERS TO FEEL THAT THEY CAN BANK ON HIS AID

By KENNETH CLARK
International News Correspondent

Kansas City, June 12—Except for farm relief the 1928 Republican platform was practically cut and dried today.

There may be a squabble over one or two planks other than the agricultural issue, but the platform will be adopted substantially as written by Senator Smoot of Utah, chairman of the resolutions committee.

The platform, of about 30 planks, hews closely to the 1924 pattern. It lauds Coolidge economy and prosperity and the protective tarriff, favors strict law enforcement, endorses the administration's efforts to outlaw war and denounces corruption in government and elections.

As originally drafted by Smoot, the farm relief plank promised a tariff readjustment to bring agriculture and industry more nearly on a parity, and this, by inference, at least, upheld President Coolidge's veto of the McNary-Haugen bill by warning the farmers that panaceas for their ills did not lie in price fixing and other artificial stimulants. It turned down the proposals advocated by the military corn belt representatives.

A copy of the Smoot draft was conveyed to Hoover lieutenants. Word was sent back that it was too "moderate" in its offer of aid to agriculture.

It is now the policy of the Hoover people to offer an affirmative farm program based on the so-called Jardine co-operative marketing aid plan. This is an effort to convince the farmers they can count on assistance from an administration headed by Hoover.

The Hoover idea is expected to prevail finally in the platform, especially as Hoover leaders are claiming they will have a majority on the resolutions committee.

It was learned today that recently in Washington Secretaries Hoover, Jardine and Mellon conferred on farm relief and agreed on general terms.

Mellon, however, is understood to have opposed specific endorsement of any particular program. The general idea was laid before President Coolidge, but he did not publicly approve the plan as a substitute for the vetoed McNary-Haugen bill. Jardine is assisting Smoot in drafting the plank.

FARM BLOC ACTIVE FOR BATTLE IN NOVEMBER

Kansas City, June 12 (INS)—Immediately after Pennsylvania and Massachusetts leaders threw their strength to Secretary Hoover today, the "farm bloc" began preparations for a new fight in November.

Backers of the farm movement promised the mid-west vote to the Democratic party if the Houston convention adopts the McNary-Haugen bill.

GOOD, JUBILANT, PHONES HOOVER THE GOOD NEWS

Kansas City, June 12 (AP)—James W. Good, manager for Hoover, jubilant over the turn of events, predicted that his candidate would be nominated before 75 per cent. of the delegates had been recorded on the first ballot. One of his first acts was to phone Hoover in Washington, assuring him that it was all over.

SEN. CURTIS WILL FIGHT HOOVER UNTIL THE END

Kansas City, June 12 (INS)—Senator Charles Curtis, Kansas favorite son candidate, today refused to concede the nomination of Herbert Hoover.

"The fight is still on," said Curtis. "The result is still uncertain. The balloting has not yet started and we will continue our fight until a nomination is made."

PROSPERITY THE BIG ISSUE IN REPUBLICAN PLATFORM

near the end of his long address. Then, after words of praise such as few conventions have listened to regarding any President save Lincoln, Senator Fess closed with this:

Tribute to Coolidge

"I once said, and I now repeat my statement. Few are his words, decisive his judgments. His comprehension of problems is broad, his vision clear, and his action dauntless. His conception of public duty forestalls the employment of mere political expediency. He spurns the arts of the demagogue, and strengthens the passion of public rectitude. He is more concerned in directing the public mind in proper channels than in following public clamor based upon propaganda. He yields not to threats, nor is he persuaded by cajolery. His evident desire to do justice to all stimulates public confidence. He shields no wrong, nor denies no right. His sense of fairness provokes support and disarms attack.

"After five years and seven months of leadership in our nation, he leaves office by his own flat, which appears to be final and is so interpreted by many of his friends in spite on the fact that his nomination and election would be a foregone conclusion did he not forbid.

"This hold upon the confidence of the American people of every name, class and creed, without regard to partisan feeling, makes Calvin Coolidge the greatest personal and political force in the world today."

Respect for Law

Senator Fess studiously avoided mentioning prohibition by name, but he made it clear that the Republican party is a dry party. His allusion to prohibition was veiled but pointed, in that section of his speech devoted to law enforcement. "After calling for more universal respect for the law," he said.

"No backward step can be tolerated upon whatever pretext which would permit a noisy minority to exploit the great mass of our population. All over the earth, led by our own example, there has burnt into national consciousness the conviction that this policy and program of human conservation must not be scuttled.

"It is not a question of tolerance or of liberty, but of life, both individual and national. The Republican party is ready to call the roll on this false doctrine masquerading under the mask of liberty. It is ready to sound the moral tocsin against the present campaign of a noise-making minority whether in the interest of business profit or mere human indulgence. It stands for respect for law. It condemns the violation of law."

Rebuke Farm Rebels

Senator Fess made it emphatically clear that the party is willing to stand or fall on the record of the Coolidge administration, and in this connection he rebuked the farm rebels in the party by approving the sentiments expressed in Mr. Coolidge's veto of the McNary-Haugen bill. He echoed a number of the President's veto arguments, and at the same time highly praised the administration's agricultural record, which, he said, contained "the enactment of no less than 24 separate pieces of constructive and remedial legislation covering every phase of the agricultural problem."

But it was upon the prosperous condition of the country since the Republicans returned to power seven years ago that the Ohio senator placed most emphasis.

"Today," he said, "we are in the longest period of sustained business prosperity in our history."

Going into details, then, Senator Fess skeched the business depression that immediatly followed the war, dwelt upon the enormous public debt and the burdensome high taxes, the di-arrangement of the whole economic and business structure of the country, and asserted that the Republican party had rescued the nation from that slough.

The public debt has been reduced eight and one-half billions of dollars since 1921, he said, at the same time that taxes were being reduced nearly $2,000,000,000 a year, and the country being made prosperous.

"This accomplishment," he asserted, "was not the result of accident, but rather of management." Under it, he continued, the American standard of living has been raised to the highest level in the world's history and kept there.

By way of comparison, he referred to "the regrettable experience of Grover Cleveland in his tariff-for-revenue-only policy and the long line of soup houses."

Senator Fess mentioned no candidate by name—unless President Coolidge can be considered in that category. But he did pay indirect compliments to Herbert Hoover, Andrew W. Mellon, Charles E. Hughes and Charles G. Dawes.

He praised the work of the Department of Commerce in the development of radio and commercial aviation under Hoover; he spoke in flowery terms of the treasury record; he told how American statesmanship had made itself felt in the rehabilitation and peace of Europe through the Dawes plan and the Locarno pacts.

Stand on Record

Foreign relations came in for considerable, though unsensational comment. He avoided any reference to the World Court, which the Harding-Coolidge administration sponsored and which the Republican leadership of the Senate defeated. He reaffirmed Republican opposition to America's entering the League of Nations, praised the State Department's efforts to "outlaw war" by treaties, and defended staunchly the Coolidge policy of sending marines to the little banana republics of Central America.

He denied the marines were in Nicaragua and Hayti for any imperialistic purposes, and asserted they would be withdrawn when the need for their presence was no longer felt.

On the whole, he told the delegates, the party record has been one of outstanding success and accomplishment, and it is upon that record that the Republicans should seek a new lease of power.

PRES. COOLIDGE HOLDS "2-MAN" CABINET MEETING

Washington, June 12 (INS)—President Coolidge held a two-man Cabinet meeting here today. Held here by the illness of Mrs. Coolidge, which will prevent departure of the presidential party until probably tomorrow night, the President decided to round up the Cabinet members still in the Capitol. Secretary of Commerce Hoover and Atty.-Gen. Sargent answered the call. They held a long conference with the President.

In G. O. P. Battle

Mrs. Pauline R. Thayer, Boston, central figure in redhot battle for office of national committeewoman. The Bay State delegation is deadlocked over the issue.

ALLIES SPLIT ON HOOVER FIGHT

Kansas City, Mo., June 12 (AP)—Informed that Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, and William M. Butler, national chairman, had thrown their support to Herbert Hoover for the presidential nomination, Senator James E. Watson of Indiana urged that the other candidates unite on a man to whom they could throw a "protest vote."

"It is all off," Senator Watson declared, just before conferring with leaders who had been fighting the nomination of Hoover. Backers of Lowden, Curtis and Goff, however, did not appear to lend a sympathetic ear to Senator Watson's suggestion that they unite on one candidate.

CASE OF "CHAMP DADDY" THROWN OUT OF COURT

Bridgeport, Ct., June 12 (AP)—Edward Cromwell, 40, whose arrest recently on his wife's complaint that he had forced her to bear 13 children attracted wide publicity, was granted a nolle by Judge Albert J. Merritt in city court today. Cromwell was arrested on a breach of peace charge, but it was found that there was no statute under which he could be prosecuted.

HOOVER WORKING AS USUAL AT HIS DESK

Kansas City, June 12 (INS)—Herbert Hoover was working as usual in Washington today when his local headquarters called on the long-distance to inform him the powerful Pennsylvania and Massachusetts delegations had decided to vote for him on the first ballot, thus virtually assuring his nomination.

Word came back that the Secretary was attending a Cabinet meeting at the White House and could not be reached.

U. S. Senator from North Dakota.

Kansas City, June 12—Sores are being opened by Republicans these days that are going to be slow in mending. Observers declare they have never known a time when the most likely candidate has been so bitterly assailed as Hoover is being assailed by Republican leaders who will be expected to come to the aid of the candidate, no matter who he may be.

It is hard to conceive the complete change of heart which will enable, for example, Senators Goff and Watson to do the expected after a possible Hoover nomination and champion his candidacy. I suppose it can be done. I suppose it has been done in times past.

But the fact of the matter is that no Democratic opponent could possibly deal more telling, more cutting blows upon the Californian than the West Virginia and Indiana favorite sons have been administering.

The Power of Little Things Well Done

These little advertisements probably bring more business than any department store advertisements of anywhere near the size printed regularly in the newspapers of this country. We believe this to be true.

Time and again, just one of these small sections devoted to just one item results in the sale of more than a thousand articles.

Time and again, although we provide relatively large quantities, the lots sell out on Wednesday, often within a few hours. (Of course, we arrange for additional quantities as we fill all orders for Wednesday-Thursday Specials received before the close of the store on Thursday.)

And the public reads and responds to our announcements—even though R. H. White Co. alone of practically all the department and specialty stores in Boston does not use former or comparative prices. No claims of value. Just the sale price.

We began these announcements in the present form at the close of the war in 1918-1919. The importance of these observations, however, lies not in the usual big response of the public, but in the reason for such response. And that reason is the confidence the public has come to feel in two facts:—

(1) the dependable quality of the merchandise (you need never have any doubt of the quality and (2) the absolute assurance of a low, money-saving price based on an automatic rule of the house that the price of these special lots for these two days shall be less than the cost of buying and selling the article.

In other words, every Wednesday-Thursday Special item is offered below cost. We believe this to be good business because it has resulted in an increased volume of business and because it attracts new customers to the store and old customers to departments in which they are not in the habit of shopping.

Typical of the opportunities you may find by reading these announcements regularly, just glance a little more carefully than usual at all the items advertised here today. If you single out any, note the new Axminster Rugs you can get for $2.87.

MAVIS

TRADE MARK REG.

CHOCOLATE DRINK

DEALERS—We know you are honest!

You are happy when you give your customers downright honest values. That's why Mavis has been such a tremendous success.

Mavis is a real food drink sterilized—pasteurized both before and after being bottled. Mavis has no secrets. Mavis is straightforward. Mavis is made of real Chocolate, Honey, Sugar and other wholesome ingredients. Dealers never have to apologize for Mavis because never before has so much money value been put into a bottle for 5c. Mavis is as delicious as any 10c or 15c Chocolate Milk Drink sold at soda fountains.

Mavis has more real value than any other 5c drink sold in bottles. One bottle of Mavis costs as much to make as two bottles of many other 5c bottled drinks. Mavis is superior to all other 5c bottled drinks from the standpoint of (1) Deliciousness (2) Refreshment (3) Nutriment (4) Food Value (5) Ingredients (6) Purity. Mavis contains no acids. No coloring matter. No drugs. No preservatives. Mavis doesn't imitate anything. Mavis is real!

Consumers Insist Upon a Health Drink

It's hard to improve upon old-fashioned methods. Mavis is just a real honest Chocolate Drink. Chocolate is the oldest and most popular flavor in the world.

Nature has decreed that man, woman and child love Chocolate. It's nature's way of insuring health. It's nature's great natural food stimulant. That's Mavis—and that's why Mavis is taking the place of "acquired taste" drinks.

A 5c bottle of Mavis is equal in food value to two fresh eggs—or a glass of Grade A milk or six ounces of whole wheat bread. Mavis is sold in bottles only.

P. S. In less than five years, Mavis is destined to become the largest selling 5c bottled drink in the world with the outlook for sales of over twenty million bottles per day.

ALL IN READINESS FOR 2-DAY MEET AT THE COUNTRY CLUB, SAYS BETTY ALDEN

Framingham Eagerly Awaiting Coming of the Day for the Events at Raceland

EVEN SO STUPENDOUS AN OCCASION AS TWO DAYS OF racing at the Country Club may be arranged with velvet smoothness, since suave direction of Eastern Horse Club members is applied to the thousand and one details. And of the thousand and one details, B. Nason Hamlin considers the special one assigned to him bids fair to be accomplished 100 per cent, even before the first fleet-footel pony dashes under the wire. Mr. Hamlin has had the selling of boxes as his particular duty.

WELL MAY MR. HAMLIN ASSUME A SATISFIED AND care-free expression. His task, motivated, of course, by his indomitable speed and energy, has practically accomplished itself. All the boxes, except for a scattered two or three, long ago were snapped up for both race days. So late comers may have only the choice of these very few vantage points in which to entertain friends and get a lofty view of the entire thrilling panorama. Mr. Hamlin's list is very ultra. All the box holders of last year and the year before are on it. And the crowd in the boxes and the throngs in the stands will be all the "Who's Who," wearing very correct or most fluttery what's what for the races.

TO THE LOT OF ANOTHER EFFICIENT GENTLEMAN, Robert W. Weeks, there falls a race day duty of utmost importance. Prosaic it may be, if that word properly may be applied to even the least of race day arrangements. Mr. Weeks is director-general of transport, and also guides to best advantage the activities of sundry score traffic officers, whose presence is necessary at so great an occasion. Mr. Weeks has deftly and wit': admirable ease, in two former years, handled these tasks. A repetition is in order for 1928.

ONE WEEK FROM TOMORROW AND THE TOWN OF FRAMINGHAM CENTER declares the day a holiday in honor of its honored resident, John R. Macomber, and his Eastern Horse Club race meet at Raceland. Shops will close and shuters go up, while everyone within a radius of many miles proceeds to beautiful "Raceland" for the big day of the local year. With royal openhandedness and whole-hearted generosity Mr. Macomber on race day flings wide the gates and bids all his friends and townsmen welcome.

IT IS A ROYAL TREAT HE PROVIDES. AND RACELAND itself provides a superb natural setting. Races in the flat and those over the jumps are plainly in view, every closely contested step of the entire course, from little hills that serve excellently as grandstands. Raceland has other outdoor beauties, too. Mr. Macomber's more intimate circle knows them well, having been his guests at al fresco fetes and picnic suppers. There are miles of bridle paths through deep woods and small rustic camping spots where supper may be cooked in the open. A superb domaine for one of Mr. Macomber's proclivities.

SUCCESSFULLY ENGINEERING A MOVIE MORNING TO corral half a thousand dollars for a pet charity is distinctly a feather in Mrs. Harold Read's cap. She and her Junior Division, S. P. C. C. workers did just that, greatly to their own gratification and much to the betterment of little wards of the Society. The Reads are lingering in their Cambridge home until late in the month. Mr. Read belongs to the Harvard class that has its big celebration this year, and until that gay week is finally written down in college history there will be no family exodus shoreward.

THE READ SUMMER HOME IS DOWN ON THE SOUTH SHORE, in Egypt, and sufficiently near the Scituate Yacht Club for the entire family, pater, mater and the son and daughters, to become water birds for the entire season. Next winter the Reads present their second daughter, Miss Carolyn Read, and have planned as social entry a dinner dance November 3, for the bud and her contemporaries. Miss Peggy Read's first winter was the successful sort a popular bud experiences, and Miss Carolyn is likely to follow suit.

Latest photograph of that young woman of varied talents, Miss Francesca Braggiotti, of Brookline, who is to appear at a local theater next week in a classic dance number. Miss Braggiotti makes such appearance annually and, needless to say, the event is one most eagerly awaited by the art loving members of Boston's smart set.

BRIDES WHO DEPART FROM THE TRADITIONAL FOR weddings, and instil into the ecclesiastical picture the something different happen now and again, happily for the chronicler of social doings. Miss Dorcas Washburn is one. When she and Luke Burnell Lockwood join hands before the altar of All Saints' Church in Worcester, two younger sisters will stand with her. And eight intimate friends will be "honorary" bridesmaids—with honor places in the pew nearest the nuptial scene. The wedding is set for June's last Saturday, which happens also to be its last day.

MISS WASHBURN IS A DAUGHTER OF MR. AND MRS. REGINALD WASHBURN of Salisbury st. in Worcester. Her futur hails from New York and Connecticut; his parents, the Luke Vincent Lockwoods, having been identified more or less with Greenwich, that smart town in the Nutmeg State, reigned over so pleasantly by Carnegies and such. Miss Washburn's younger sister, Miss Phoebe Washburn, is the betrothed of that popular young man known familiarly to his intimates as "Charlie" Barnes. Mrs. Henry C. Everett, Jr., pretty young matron is his sister.

21 INJURED BY TORNADO

Lincoln, Neb., June 12 (AP)—Twenty-one persons are reported injured and more than 100 homes wreckked or badly damaged in a tornado in Southwestern Nebraska, only meager reports of which are available.

McCook, nar the Kansas-Nebraska line, apparently was hardest hit by the storm, which originated in Northwestern Kansas. At Ludell some damage was reported. In the Platte river valley it became merely a violent wind storm, accompanied by rain and hail. Traveling northeast, the storm appeared to split, one part passing through Ellsworth and the other through Merna.

First reports from McCook said 20 persons were injured, two of them probably fatally, and approximately 100 homes demolished. It was believed much damage also was done in the section south and west of McCook.

TULLY VERY BAD, SAYS HIS WIFE

Los Angeles, June 12 (AP)—Jim Tully, author of several novels, was charged with cruelty in a divorce complaint filed here yesterday by his wife, the former Margaret R. Myers.

Tully, who early in life started out as a tramp, became a prize fighter and then turned to letters. For several years Mr. and Mrs. Tully have made their home in Hollywood.

Among the allegations of cruelty by Mrs. Tully is that her husband accused her of being too friendly with another man.

Following upon these accusations, she charged, he forced her by threats of violence to sign a statement admitting misconduct. The complaint states that Tully also forced his wife to sign another statement to the effect that all their property was his.

Tully, whose name appears in the complaint as James Alexander Tully, has an income of more than $2000 a month, the wife alleges. She asks for alimony and attorney's fees.

The couple was married in January, 1925. Mrs. Tully also is a writer.

STARS SAY "BACK TO THE FARM" FOR COOLIDGE

THUNDER SHOWERS ARE ON THEIR WAY TO HUB

Gathering force to the accompaniment of heavy thunderstorms, a disturbance centered today in Dakota threatens Greater Boston with showers over the next 36 hours.

Temperatures, subnormal throughout the country since the beginning of June, showed signs today of climbing to near-summer heights, but predicted easterly winds will keep New England cool for some time longer.

Forecast for Boston and vicinity: Fair tonight; Wednesday partly cloudy, possibly with showers; rising temperature Wednesday; moderate easterly winds, shifting to southerly Wednesday.

BYRD TO BE HONORED BY WORCESTER TECH

Hollis, president of the institute, 1913-1925; Spencer Miller, '79, of New York, a consulting engineer; Gornpei Kuwada, '93, of Japan, part owner and manager of Nihon Spindle Seizosha of Japan, and Moses B. ## CARRIER LEXINGTON SETS NEW RECORD FOR SPEED

Washington, June 12 (AP)—The airplane carrier Lexington, in the second 24 hours of her voyage from San Pedro, Cal., to Honolulu, established another new record by making a run of 742 miles, she informed the Navy Department today. # Shave Odds on Hoover; N. E. in K. C.'s Eye

By ELIAS A. McQUAID

Kansas City, June 12—Betting figures may not signify much, but they are always interesting. These are the prices the local "Bookies" are making for gentlemen who like to speculate: 100 to 35 that Coolidge will not receive the nomination; 2 to 5 it does not go to Hoover; 8 to 5 Dawes is not the man; 5 to 1 it isn't Watson; 10 to 1 against Curtis; 25 to 1 that Goff also runs.

Curtis on Deck

AT KANSAS CITY

Senator Curtis as he arrived at the G. O. P. convention city to take charge of his campaign for the presidential nomination.

Only a few weeks ago, I am told the odds were 20 to 1 against Coolidge getting the nomination and 15 to 1 against Dawes. There are no quotations whatever on Lowden.

The delegation from New Hampshire, led by Governor Huntley N. Spaulding and including Thomas Rice Varick, the Manchester leader, were met at the Union Station by First Assistant Postmaster General John H. Bartlett, a former governor of the Granite State.

With New Hampshire's 11 delegates came the 15 from Maine and 11 from Vermont. Among them was the "original Hoover man," former Governor Percival P. Baxter of Maine, who cast Maine's seven votes for Hoover in the Chicago convention of 1920 and who said today that this year's 15 will be for the Secretary of Commerce, "until the end."

VERMONT FOR HOOVER

How about Vermont? The delegates from President's native state, while uninstructed, are declared to be "favorable to Hoover, with no second choice." At least, this was the inference drawn by interviewers who talked with National Committeeman Earl Kinsley. Those whom I have met, however, have "nothing to say" beyond the fact that they are here "uninstructed." The Hoover forces have been listing the Green Mountain States 11 in the Hoover column.

Everybody's happy. A survey by the leading hotels shows that 30,000 visitors are spending $103,000 a day. The full five days will enrich Kansas City by approximately $515,000. If the convention drags on every additional day will pile up $103,000 more. The average daily expenditure of each visitor is placed at $15. A lot of it goes for tips and ginger ale, and the like of that.

At least six of the ten members of the Coolidge Cabinet are in town today, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, Secretary of War Dwight Davis, Postmaster General New, Secretary of the Interior Work, and Secretary of Labor James John Davis.

MORE FUN IN MAINE

With the Secretary of War is Mrs. Davis, who was Hellen Brooks of Boston, and their debutante daughter, Miss Alice, 18, who hopes her first national convention will be "awfully exciting." My own opinion is that the excitement is likely to follow after this convention and that Miss Davis will have more fun up at Dark Harbor Me. This is a resolution which Mrs. Henry W. Peabody of Beverly, Mass., acting for the Womens National Committee on Law Enforcement, will bring to the attention of Senator Reed Smoot and his platform builders;

"In view of the persistent attacks on the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act we believe that the party platform should declare unequivocally for these measures, and that candidates should, if elected, make sincere and earnest efforts to execute the law. We ask for a platform and candidates embodying these principles."

The ladies who are here to see that the G. O. P. comes out strong against John Barleycorn and all his works are meeting with some feminine opposition. Miss M. Louis Gross of New York, chairman of the Women's Committee for Repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, has joined the Coalition to "Stop Hoover" because she says she is satisfied that Mr. Hoover is the Choice of the "Dry" element in the party.

SINGLE SESSION SEATS

Kansas City's share of seats in the convention hall is 750, the distribution by a local committee being based upon the size of contributions to the convention expense fund. The seats are allotted and tickets issued for "Single sessions only," in order that the contributors may make the widest possible distribution of their favors.

Jacob S. Coxey of Massillon O., the famous "general" of Coxey's Army, is here to demand: (1) a plank endorsing the Coxey Legal Tender plan—which your correspondent is unable to explain because he is too dumb to understand it— and (2) an initiative and referendum amendment to the Constitution by which "We" can get rid of prohibition. Two short paragraphs from the Old Gentleman, who wants Ohio's Republican nomination for United States Senator, will prove that he is as entertaining as ever.

General Coxey says: The Government is being operated for and by the five B's; Bankers, Bondholders, Brokers, Bootleggers and Burglars. The first three are taking the people's money by law, and the last two taking the first threes' money and don't give a dam about the law. The rest of the drinkers are buying poison.

"If the Republican party puts a dry plank in this year it will be the party's death-kneel.

Harmony Is "Keynote" in Bishop's Opening Prayer

Convention Hall, Kansas City, June 12 (AP)—Here are features in the prayer of Bishop S. H. Partridge of the Kansas City diocese of the Episcopal Church, delivered in opening the Republican National Convention:

"By Thy mighty aid was this nation first established, and under Thy guiding hand it hath continued to this day.

"We invoke Thy benediction upon the purposes and deliberations of those who are gathered here.

"May the spirit of the truest and noblest patriotsim animate and control us all. Lift us above every tie serving a mercenary motive and save us from selfish and unworthy ends.

"May our consultation be peaceful and harmonious, and in the bestowal of position and honor may our choice fall upon those of unquestioned honesty, integrity, purity and loyalty.

"Grant us, we beseech Thee, that this great assembly, from first to last, be actuated by the noblest sentiments and principles that shall exalt and advance the nation, and tend to the advancement of purity and justice and truth throughout the land."

New York Will Vote 60 for Hoover on 1st Ballot

Kansas City, June 12 (INS)—At least 60, and possibly more, of New York's votes will be cast for Herbert Hoover for President on the first ballot, it was predicted today by Hoover delegates, following action of Pennsylvania in declaring for the Secretary of Commerce.

"It's all over but the shouting: Hoover will be nominated on the first ballot and he will get his share of the New York delegation on the first ballot," said Ogden L. Mills, Under-Secretary of the Treasury and leader of the Hoover forces in the Empire State.

Lowden Manager Says It's Hoover, but Continues Fight

Kansas City, June 12 (AP)—Although convinced that the decision of the Pennsylvania delegation to go to Hoover on the first ballot means the nomination of the cabinet member, Clarence F. Buck, Lowden manager, announced today the fight for his man would go on.

"We know this seems to mean the nomination of Hoover, but our fight is one for equality for agriculture and we will redouble our efforts to have the party declare in favor of the principles of the McNary-Haugen bill," Buck said.

Lowden himself had no comment to make except that the Pennsylvania decision would not make any change in his position.

G. O. P. Up in the Air, Declares McIntyre

By O. O. McINTYRE

Kansas City, Mo., June 12—In the Muehlebach lobby two slightly pie-eyed gentlemen were discussing the political outlook. Said one gravely: "Whoever it is is bound to be nominated." Replied the other just as gravely: "You can search me."

And that is symbolic of the cock-eyed pre-convention atmosphere. Nobody knows anything.

I'm just foolin' around, seeing life in Kansas City, following parades, getting free rides in elevators and sending postcards back home.

Last evening I found a dog that plays a toy piano and a firm that paints the faded grass on your lawn a brilliant green. I like that idea. I'm going to take it back to New York and try to become the head man of a brighter lawn movement. The average New York lawn consists of a jerk of grass and a sign, "no trespassing," so the lawn painter would have no more to do than an Easter lily salesman.

SOME WAITER

Where was I? Oh yes. I know. About the convention. Well, I saw young Teddy Roosevelt, who has the molar accomplishment of his illustrious sire. He was flashing his teeth and pounding a table to explain to a frightened cub reporter he was not a candidate for anything. The way he glared at me as I passed, you might think I started the rumor. I didn't even know he was in town.

New York drags through the early morning and begins to bustle with activity around 10 o'clock. So the easterner is always impressed with the early morning activity out here. At 5 a. m. there is the turbulent roar of traffic and the sidewalk shuffle. This morning I arose at 8 o'clock and felt postively effiminate. When I rang for the waiter he brought me a luncheon menu.

And—you folks don't want to hear about that silly convention anyway—I must tell you about that waiter. He is the spit image of Lew Fields in "Old Dutch," and explodes like a bottle of pop conversationally. For years he graced such establishments as Martin's Bustanoby's and Shanley's in New York. But ten years ago he came to Kansas City and he never wants to return to the East. He is devoted to golf and is the only waiter I ever came across who plays this game.

That interests me more than what the Texas delegation is going to do. His dialect is delicious. Will Rogers stuck his head in the door for a moment.

"That was Will Rogers," I told him. "A goot joke-cracker, dot fellow," he said.

HE'S BOUND EAST AGAIN

And then Charlie Young came in and told me about the Scotchman who was eating a pig's knuckle and had eaten down his own elbow before they stopped him. So that gives you a slight idea of how much fun you can have at a political convention.

Today, of course, is the big day, and everything is on the qui vive, if you know what I mean. I'm sure I don't.

LABOR DEMANDS 5-DAY WEEK

By WILLIAM GREEN
President of the American Federation of Labor
Written for International News Service

Kansas City, June 13—Organized labor will make its first bid this week to have the five-day week incorporated in a national poutical platform as a universally accepted ideal of the American worker.

This is only one of the planks which the American Federation of Labor will fight to have in the Republican platform, but it is the most important in that it represents an advance in American labor standards.

Labor's fight against the injunction in industrial disputes will be continued. Improper resort to the courts has been repeatedly denounced by both the Republican and Democratic parties. We seek now to have emphatic declarations in favor of restraining legislation in the national platform.

The fight for the federal constitutional amendment to abolish child labor will be intensified and we shall seek to extend protective legislation to women in industry.

Capper Predicts That Curtis Will Be Chosen

By SENATOR ARTHUR CAPPER,
Leader of the Senate Farm Bloc and staunch supporter of Curtis. Written exclusively for International News Service.

Kansas City, June 12—The nomination of Charles Curtis for President of the United States would solidify the Republican party, heal all schisms and insure us a sweeping victory in November.

Out of the series of conferences being held today as the convention assembles, I am certain there will come an agreement to nominate Curtis.

This son of the plains is not too conservative for the Liberals and not so radicol as to lose conservative support. He is acquainted with the problems of the East and yet he was raised in the West.

The Kansas sentiment is that America needs a Westerner for President. She has proffered Charles Curtis. I believe the Republican party, in order to guarantee victory in November, will choose her favorite son as its nominee.

King Frames Democratic Plank Against Monopolies

Washington, June 12 (AP)—A platform containing a plank against centralization of government in Washington will be submitted to the resolutions committee of the Democratic convention at Houston by Senator King, Democrat, Utah.

It also will contain planks against trusts and monopolies; demanding a new tariff schedule that will not discriminate against any section of the country; adherence to the world court and condemning the administration policy in Latin America and Haiti.

ROY D'ARCY, BANKRUPT, HAS ASSETS OF $325

Los Angeles, June 12 (AP)—Roy D'Arcy, movie actor, has filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition in federal court here listing liabilities of $14,531 and assets of $325.

Several months ago the former wife of D'Arcy was adjudged bankrupt with assets of $2000 and liabilities of $22,052. In that action creditors sought to find what had become of $25,000 in Christmas gifts purchased by Mrs. D'Arcy. D'Arcy's true name is Roy Guisti.

DAWES OUT OF LUCK, SAYS ASTROLOGER

Vice-President Dawes is out of the running for the presidency because Saturn, the planet of delay and misfortune, is resting on his radical Jupiter, Catherine Victoria Thompson, of 199 Audubon rd., noted Hub, astrologer, declared today that his horoscope shows.

By CATHERINE V. THOMPSON

Vice-President Charles Gates Dawes was born Sunday August 27, 1865, at Marietta, O. We have not the hour of his birth, but as he was raised to a very high position when Jupiter, the Greater Fortune who is here very dignified, had come to his original place at birth we have put this great planet in his midheaven or House of Honor.

That places the Sun, Mercury and Mars in his House of Marriage, and he married at 24 when Jupiter had again passed over his own place and the Sun was resting on Mars.

Dawes seems to possess all the characteristics of Sagittarius, a great sporting sign and one that rules bankers and finance, for which he shows marked ability.

BOLD AND DECISIVE

The Sagittarian is bold, courageous, fearless, combative and decisive, possesses an inspirational temperament, aims well and hits the mark in general matters, rarely making a mistake if he follows his inspirations, but invariably making mistakes in following the advice of others.

His mind is constantly running ahead beyond the present, having a tendency to peer into the future and being naturally prophetic he can tell the outcome of any enterprise undertaken. He is industrious, jovial and daring and is fond of outdoor sports, children and animals and he will guard the secrets of his friends.

NOTHING COMING HIS WAY

If 7 p. m. is his correct birth hour, he is in for a series of good aspects by the Moon and to March, 1929, but they are not strong enough for the presidency because Saturn, the planet of delay and misfortune, is resting on his radical Jupiter.

Nothing much is coming his way, especially as Jupiter, who has been so advantageous in his life, is now making oppositions to his progressors, Saturn, Sun, Mars and Mercury, and probably in his House of Death—but we have to be cautious where the hour is not known.

We also notice all this presidential week that Herschel is in opposition to his progressor Veus, and that evil aspect does not pass until the end of August.

Hamilton Fish Featured in Vice-Presidential Race

Kansas City, June 12 (INS)—The political woods here are full of vice-presidential candidates.

The most active campaigner is Rep. Hamilton Fish of New York. His supporters have been buttonholing delegates in all camps in his behalf. He is on the list approved by veterans' organizations.

A strong drive also is being made for Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the House Republican leader.

Others mentioned include Vice-President Dawes, whose close friends say he wouldn't take the job again, Governor Fuller of Massachusetts, William J. Donovan of New York, assistant attorney general, Hanford MacNider of Iowa, ex-assistant secretary of war, Col. Theodore Roosevelt of New York, Governor Sam Baker of Missouri, C. S. Osborne of Michigan, Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas and Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, who is to be permanent chairman of the convention.

Curtis is shooting for first place, but his friends said he would accept the vice-presidential nomination if the other honor is denied him.

Anti-Child Labor Plank Offered by Sec. Davis

By JAMES J. DAVIS
Secretary of Labor
Written for International News Service

Kansas City, June 12—The mechanization of industry has brought about a practical industrial revolution in our country.

The development of rapid power machinery processes has resulted in the displacement of many workers, and has forced them to engage in other activities.

It is a situation in which the American laboring man is deeply concerned.

As benefits to the working man I am suggesting the following proposals to the platform committee of the Republican convention:

Good Wages—It is necessary to have a high protective tariff to maintain high wages.

Child Labor—Children should be protected from arduous occupations in industry.

Eight Hour Day—Eight hours a day is sufficient for anyone to work. We must eliminate the seven-day week.

Collective Barganing—The right of labor to bargain collectively cannot be denied.

Labor Injunctions—There has been a widespread complaint against the use of the injunction. Labor believes in protecting its privileges and safeguarding its rights and immunities from unwarranted invasion.

Summing up, the protective tariff, limited immigration, exclusion of child labor, general watchfulness of women in industry, the eight-hour day, collective bargaining coupled with conciliation and arbitration and curbing the use of the writ of injunction are the important things in which the American laboring man is very much interested.

G. O. P. Must Pledge Farm Relief, Says McMaster

By SENATOR McMASTER
A Farm Bloc Leader From South Dakota Written Exclusively for International News Service.

Kansas City, June 12—For eight years the pledges for farm relief contained in the political platforms have been ruthlessly broken.

The dominant question before the national Republican convention is, wil lthe convention meet the farm issue squarely?

The agricultural industry is the backbone of the nation. On the prosperity of the farmer depends the prosperity of the rest of us. The farmer must be treated as fairly by the party as the banker, the lawyer and the champion of industry. The farmer wants, not promises but action fro mthe Republican party.

Hilles' Snub to Mills Splits N. Y. Delegation

Kansas City, June 12 (INS)—The turning down of Ogden L. Mills, under-secretary of the treasury, and substitution of Ambassador Alanson B. Houghton as New York's representative on the resolutions committee, today split the Empire State's delegation wide open.

Friends of Mills predicted there would be immediate and sweeping reprisals on National Committeeman Charles D. Hilles and State Chairman George K. Morris, in the event that Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover is nominated for the presidency.

With the aid of former U. S. Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., and Mrs. Charles H. Sabin of New York, national committeewoman, Hilles and Morris engineered the move which cost Mills the much-coveted place.

"Good-by!" Said Mellon, and That's All Coolidge Replied

Kansas City, June 12 (INS)—The most interesting story going the rounds of the Republican convention today purported to explain why Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon came to Kansas City without some word from President Coolidge as to his choice for the Republican nomination.

The treasury secretary called at the White House just before leaving Washington and entered the presidentail office, the story went, hopeful of getting some expression from Mr. Coolidge.

"Good morning, Mr. President," said Mellon, proffering his hand.

"Good morning, Mr. Secretary," said the President, and they shook hands.

"I'm about to leave for the convention," Mellon continued, "so I came in to say good bye."

"Good-bye," said the President, proffering his hand. They shook hands and Mellon left.

KING WARNED HIS OATH BARS PRAYERBOOK CHANGE

London, June 12 (AP)—The League of Loyal Churchmen, a body connected with the Church of England, has sent a letter to King George declaring that if Parliament approves the latest revision of the prayerbook it will be asking his majesty to break the oath he took at his coronation, to maintain the Protestant reformed religion. This would place his majesty in the unfair position of jeopardizing the rights of his successors, it was asserted. The debate on the prayerbook opens in the House of Commons tomorrow.

STUDENT DEAD IN CRASH, 3 INJURED

Holyoke, June 12—One Amherst student is dead, and the names of three others are on the danger list at Providence Hospital here today as a result of a crash in South Hadley Center, when their machine left the road and bored into a telegraph pole.

Robert Atkinson, 22, of Rochester, Pa., died a short time after reaching the hospital.

The injured are William Luce, 21, Minneapolis, Minn.; Hanford Hisl[illegible], 20, Yonkers, N. Y., and Berford Brittain, Jr., 22, [illegible]dale.

As near as could be learned, the boys were on their way from Holyoke to Amherst, when the car swerved from the road traveling at high speed. It cut down the pole, which fell across the machine, bringing down a tangle of wires.

Officials at Amherst College have forbidden use of automobiles to all undergraduates except seniors. Those involved in today's accident are juniors and unless some exception was made during commencement time they were breaking the rule. All are members of the Psi Upsilon fraternity.

MELBOURNE TO GREET FLIERS

Sydney, Australia, June 12—The two Australians and two Americans who made the great 7788-mile flight from California here in the Southern Cross tomorrow will be off again on another flight.

This time, however, the fliers are only hopping 600 miles from this city to Melbourne where the citizens are waiting to greet them.

The Southern Cross belongs to the two Australian pilots having been presented by the backer of the flight, G. Allan Hancock, Los Angeles millionaire, at the conclusion of the trip. Hancock now has given a half interest in the motion pictures of the flight to the two Americans.

U. S. Pacific Fliers Won't Share Australian Fund

Sydney, Australia, June 12 (INS)—Navigator Harry Lyon and Radio Operator James Warner, Americans, who made the transpacific flight in the Southern Cross with the Australians, announced today they would not accept any of the funds subscribed in Australia for the fliers.

"The subscriptions are really for the Australians," said Lyon. "It would hardly be fair for us to share them. There is plenty for us in the United States."

A number of gifts, including loving cups, have been donated to the Americans.

$1 Insurance Offer Aid to Safety

By Frank A. Goodwin

Highway Safety Editor, Boston Evening American, and Former Registrar of Motor Vehicles for Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

"SCORES HURT WHEN SUBWAY CARS COLLIDE."

This headline announced the subway accident of last Saturday.

No one knows when an accident is going to happen or where he will be a victim.

Any person depending upon wages or salary for the support of himself and dependents is almost criminally negligent if he does not provide for emergency. Who would not be so protected when it costs only $1 and merely means the filling out of an application blank?

Frank A. Goodwin

The Boston Evening American offers such protection for a whole year for $1 under a $10,000 accident insurance policy, free from strings, ramifications and subterfuge.

This $1 policy will pay $10,000 for a death in a railroad or steamboat accident. It will pay $2,500 for deaths caused by taxi or bus accidents. It will pay $20 a week for 15 weeks if a person is injured in such accidents or is so disabled as to be unable to attend to his business or perform his work.

It will pay $1000 for loss of life caused by a wreck of a pleasure automobile or horse-drawn vehicle or to a pedestrian killed by a vehicle on the highway.

It will pay $10 a week for 15 weeks if the injured person is incapacitated so that he cannot work at his business or employment. In addition, it provides hospital benefit of $7.50 a week for five weeks.

Under the compulsory automobile insurance act the person injured cannot recover damages unless he can prove the person injuring him was at fault and he himself was not guilty of contributing negligence.

THIS GIVES THE INSURANCE COMPANIES THE WHIP HAND and it is common knowledge THAT SETTLEMENTS ARE DELAYED FROM TWO TO THREE YEARS.

As a rule the injured person is in urgent need of immediate financial assistance and the claim agents, knowing this, TAKE ADVANTAGE of the claimants who usually SETTLE FOR SUMS FAR LESS THAN THEY ARE ENTITLED TO.

Of course if the claim agent does not think there is a clear case of liability HE WILL NOT SETTLE AT ALL, making it necessary for the claimant to hire a lawyer to fight it out in the courts, with attendant delay and expense.

The accident policy offered by the Boston Evening American for one dollar, or in fact any accident policy, is supplementary to compulsory insurance AND GIVES INJURED PERSONS QUICK RELIEF which will enable them to be more independent and thereby get a more favorable settlement from insurance companies.

Every one who is not financially independent should avail himself of this splendid offer. I have heard the Boston Evening American's $10,000 accident insurance policy offer widely discussed and commended because of the extraordinary benefits to be derived from the payment of the surprisingly small sum of one dollar. I liked the offer so well that I bought one of the policies myself.

A Story of Love and the French Revolution

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

CLEONIE DE MONTSORBIER, an aristocrat of the French Revolution, has been saved from the guillotine through the intervention of Citizen-Deputy Chauviniere. To get her out of Paris he has given her men's clothes and had her pose as his secretary. His attitude at a village inn where they stop fills her with fear. During the night she escapes on horseback, taking with her the portfolio which contains his passports and official papers. Finding she has gone, Chauviniere sets the Revolutionary Committee of Nevers on her trail.

CHAPTER VIII

BY a miracle she kept her voice steady. "Who is there?"

"It is I, citoyenne; Chauviniere."

"What do you want, citoyen?"

There was a long pause before his answer came: "To warn you that we set out early in the morning. The chaise will be ready at 8 o'clock."

"I shall be punctual, citoyen. Good-night."

"Good-night, citoyenne."

His footsteps receded. Scarcely crediting her ears, she listened to them as they crossed the length of the outer room. Then she heard him pass into his own chamber, and at last came the closing of his door. She was able to breathe again. But it was in vain that she sought to explain that trivial incident. Had he deliberately sought to scare her, merely so as to show that all fear of him was idle and thus lull her into a sense of false security, or had his action been genuine?

She crossed the room and flung herself upon the bed, fully dressed as she was, even to her riding-boots, but she left the candle burning and made no attempt to go to sleep.

With a patience and self-control that were miraculous considering what was in her mind, she lay thus, listening and waiting for a full two hours until she could be sure that the house slept. Then, at last, she rose, and removed her boots. She took up the guttering candle, and very softly withdrew the bolts of her door. Cautiously, soundlessly, she opened it, and soundlessly crept out into the room beyond, which now was all in darkness. A moment she paused listening. From beyond the far door came a sound of mild snoring. The citizen-representative was asleep.

With her boots in one hand and the candle held aloft in the other she tiptoed towards the door that opened to the stairs. Midway across the room she checked. Something gleamed lividly on a side-table and drew her glance. It was the clasp of the representative's portfolio. She paused, hesitating, scared by the temptation that assailed her, to which, at last, with a pale smile, she yielded. She snatched up the portfolio and tucked it under her arm. Then she passed out and in her stockinged feet cautiously descended the creaking staircase.

In the passage below she paused to put on her boots. Then very carefully she drew the bolts of a side door, and stepped out into the stable yard. Here a shock awaited her. Although it was past midnight, a light showed in the stables; the upper half of the stable door stood open and above the closed lower half she beheld the bust of a man who leaned there, who had observed her exit and who now straightened himself to challenge her. Instantly resolved, she forestalled him.

"Ah! You are astir! It is fortunate, for otherwise I must have fetched you from your bed. I need a horse at once, citizen."

"A horse? Name of a name! A

BARN OF G. O. P. LEADER IS RAIDED

FIND RUM; ONE MAN HELD

New Bedford, June 12.—Two hundred and sixty-eight cases of assorted liquors were seized by state troopers in a raid on a Mattapoisett Neck barn owned by Charles M. Carroll of New Bedford, delegate to the Republican National Convention.

The liquor was seized by details from the Middleboro and Freetown barracks, in command of Lieut. Edward J. Gully, who arrested the caretaker Oliver Bean. He will appear in Wareham district court.

The troopers said they found the contraband, consisting of Scotch, vermouth, brandy and champagne in a sub-basement under the barn. There were many truck marks outside running down to the sea. Carroll, who left for the convention Sunday, is a well known real estate dealer, who ran for mayor a few years ago.

WARNS FROZEN CUSTARD MAKERS AT REVERE

Dr. P. H. Mullowney

Director, Hearst Health Laboratory.

In company with Inspector Bruno of the Revere board of health I made a surprise visit to seven places at the beach where frozen custard is made.

For those who may not understand what is meant by the term "frozen custard," I will say that it is composed of whole milk, whole eggs, sugar and flavoring. [illegible] rapidly [illegible] ice cream in popularity at all beach resorts.

Dr. Mullowney

After mixing, the resulting product is placed in a metal cylinder which is then made to revolve around in a chamber of ice. When the mixture [illegible] the consistency of whipped cream it is forced out through a narrow tube and falls into an open ice cream container from which it is dispensed.

In this latter part of the process the ice cream is in the open air, unless proper protection is furnished.

CRUDE ARRANGEMENTS

There were three places only where the conditions were found to be satisfactory. In the other places the sanitary arrangements were crude, with no arrangements for the sterilization of the equipment by hot water or otherwise.

A very close inspection was made of the products used in manufacture, particular attention being paid to the quality of the eggs utilized.

One manufacturer was found to be using no eggs and in place of milk was using condensed milk [illegible] with cream.

The [illegible] in all the places [illegible].

The [illegible] in the manufacture of this product is the lack of protection for the frozen custard as it comes out of the [illegible]. It is fully exposed in the open air and [illegible] falls into a ten gallon

8 RESCUED AT FIRE IN WEST BOYLSTON

Worcester, June 12—Eight persons, a mother and her seven children, were rescued over a ladder today when fire leveled the cottage home of Peter Nowak, Prospect st., West Boylston.

All were on the verge of collapse from smoke.

Nowak, in the role of rescuer, was forced to jump 12 feet from a window to the ground to procure the ladder in the barn adjoining the house. The house was a seething furnace when Jadwiga Nowak, 17, eldest daughter, aroused her father in the early morning hours. Hastily she wrapped the other children in blankets while the frantic mother clasped a two-year-old child to her.

By superhuman efforts Nowak made trip after trip over the home-made ladder, carrying three children on one of the trips.

Meanwhile, aroused neighbors called the fire apparatus, but distance from a hydrant hampered the firemen in their work. The children were taken into nearby homes with the mother and father, where the latter collapsed from his experience.

The blaze is believed to have started from an overheated stove in the kitchen, quickly racing through the house in a mushroom. Damage was estimated at $5000.

QUIZ SISTER IN SHIP THEFT

Zella Hessel, on trial in Suffolk Superior Court with her sisters, Mrs. Eva Etta Gordon and Mrs. Rae Weschman, in connection with the larceny by George W. Gordon from the Eastern Steamship Lines, Inc., today admitted $246,000 was taken to Detroit from Boston.

Under cross-examination by Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle she said that on December 10 she went to Detroit with $92,000 in money, $17,000 in jewelry, $25,000 in stocks and caused $46,000 in checks to be brought out by her sister, Rae. Other moneys and stocks brought the amount to $246,000 the witness testified.

"Wasn't that out of the ordinary?" Doyle asked. "I didn't consider it so," the witness replied.

"Didn't you think it peculiar that George W. Gordon gave his wife a quarter of a million in money and no checks?" "No."

"What [illegible] worth?" "A million."

"Where did you think he got it?" "In the stock market."

"What was going to be done with all this money taken to Detroit," Doyle asked.

The witness replied $18,000 was to be used to buy a house, some of it was to be put into the account for Betty, Eva Gordon's daughter, and $1500 was to be devoted to furnishing a room for Betty.

MISS DEL RIO IN "RAMONA" AT THE STATE

By LEO GAFFNEY

Dolores Del Rio

The scenic wonders on view in "Ramona" at Loew's State may easily be said to include Dolores Del Rio. As this super-sentimental tale of the Indian's subjection in old California runs its course, the spectator divides his admiration between the pictorial grandeur of the settings and the dark, lustrous girl generally discovered in the exact center of them. The production also boasts some of the finest photography seen on the State screen in months. But as drama Helen Hunt Jackson's "Ramona," brought to the films for the third time in sixteen years, clearly betrays the ravages that time has wrought upon it.

Edwin Carewe directed the feature and certainly did well by it scenically. He gives us capital shots of the crumbly, vine-covered Spanish missions; a glimpse of a hooded monk [illegible] his [illegible] under an ancient arch; of an old hacienda that looks cool and peaceful; of a wooded hillside with its Arcadian vista of many, close-packed, wooly sheep whose abundant fleeces are snow white in the sun, [illegible] that rise straight up out of a forest—all these [illegible] details does Carewe give us but little of anything else save the [illegible] of a typical storybook tale.

Miss Del Rio's performance as the half-white, half Indian girl is doubtless hampered by the [illegible] of the story [illegible] Warner Baxter as her Indian husband, and [illegible] the remaining principal character, Roland Drew, as Felipe, the white boy who finally wins her after the cruel massacre of her dusky spouse.

"Ramona" is one of the good film spectacles, it can be seen on this account alone—and enjoyed.

Lillian Gish Film

"The Enemy," Lillian Gish's newest film, is one feature for the week at the Bowdoin Square Theater [illegible] "Midnight Madness" with Jacque [illegible] and Clive Brook, together with a bill of vaudeville, is also on view.

protection makes possible high wages, and high wages make it possible for American workers to buy farm products

This country produces ninety billion dollars' worth of new wealth every year, thirteen billions from the soil, six billions from mines, sixty three billions from industry

Cripple that industry with foolish tariff tinkerers and everybody will have trouble.

France asks this country to join an international committee on large dams, to prevent floods, reclaim land and develop power. Robbins, acting Secretary of War, favors the committee.

Our Government doubtless will refer the French invitation to our big power men. They have definite ideas on the construction of dams, land reclamation, power development, etc., and especially on the importance of keeping government out of such matterrs.

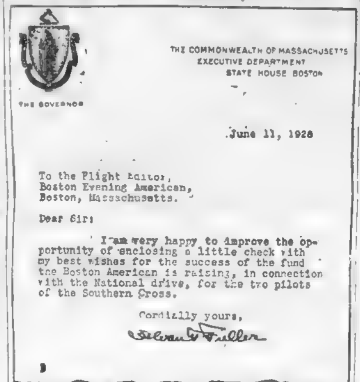
FULLER PRAISES AMERICAN FUND FOR PACIFIC FLIERS



THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT
STATE HOUSE BOSTON

THE GOVERNOR

June 11, 1928

To the Flight Editor,
Boston Evening American,
Boston, Massachusetts.

Dear Sir:

I am very happy to improve the opportunity of enclosing a little check with my best wishes for the success of the fund the Boston American is raising, in connection with the National drive, for the two pilots of the Southern Cross.

Cordially yours,
Alvan T. Fuller

GOVERNOR GLAD TO HONOR FLIERS

In forwarding his check for $25 to the fund being raised by the Boston Evening American for the two American fliers who conquered the Pacific, Governor Fuller highly praised the plan in the above letter.

crete form to the two citizens of this country who made the flight.

B. F. Billings, operations manager of Boston Airport Corporation went so far as to say that the work of navigator and radio operator, combined, is 75 per cent responsible for the success of long flights such as was made in the Southern Cross

No gift is too small, as this purse is intended to represent the good-will of the people as a whole. Every contribution will be recorded through the columns of the Boston Evening or allied newspapers.

PRAISE FUND

Some local expressions of opinion, relative to the plan follow:

ANDREW J. PETERS, president Boston Chamber of Commerce—Australia has recognized generously its two citizens who took part in the Pacific flight. There is every reason why the United States should do the same for its citizens. It was a great feat to have held the controls in a trip across the Pacific. Nevertheless the part of Harry Lyon as navigator and of James Warner as radio operator was as essential to the success of the trip as that of either pilot. All four men shared the same perils and Harry Lyon and James Warner should receive due recognition from our citizens of the part which they took in the wonderful flight across the Pacific.

PRESIDENT GEORGE HANNAUER of the Boston & Maine Railroad—These men have accomplished a wonderful feat and I believe it would be a nice thing for the American people to be given an opportunity to show concrete expression of their appreciation

B. F. BILLINGS, operations manager of Boston Airport Corporation—I think it's a fine idea to make a gift of money to the navigator and radio operator of the Southern Cross who flew from California to Australia. I've seen two or three flights of this nature and the navigator does at least 50 per cent of the work. I would say that the radio operator and navigator combined are 75 per cent responsible for the success of such a flight, for, after all, any pilot can sit there and operate the plane if someone tells him where to go. A pilot can sit there for any number of hours and pilot the plane with some one to relieve him now and then, but very few can fly where they want to go, without aid of a navigator.

THE REV. E. TALLMADGE ROOT, secretary of Massachusetts Federation of Churches—I think it is an excellent idea to give public expression of appreciation of such a noteworthy achievement. Such a gift from the people is well worth while.

"IOLANTHE" IS FINELY SUNG AT SHUBERT

Vera Ross.

Those blithe songsters, the Winthrop Ames-Gilbert-Sullivan opera troupe, continue to disport themselves at the Shubert. "Iolanthe" began the second week of the current engagement last night, carrying with it the undiminished pleasure, the almost ecstatic delight that comes with a renewal of acquaintance with these matchless gems of the comic opera stage. The charm of "Iolanthe" lies in understanding it, and that is not at all a difficult task. The delicious humor of the Fairy Queen and her subjects, twitting the pompous House of Lords, can hardly fail to [illegible] itself upon home audiences as they recognize the American counterparts of Parliament in politicians on this side of the water.

If you like Will Rogers' good humored joshing of the Senate you will "get" the humor of "Iolanthe." If your taste in music calls for something better than the average popular song you will be charmed with true melodies, and if, in a word, you want above everything else in the theater that only which is beautiful and fine, you may feel the complete satisfaction of knowing what you want and getting it. The Winthrop Ames production of "Iolanthe" is flawless. The company has been doing it for two years. Every member is letter perfect in his part. Vera Ross, of the famous contralto voice, is the impotent fairy queen; Lois Bennett, a perfect Phyllis; William Williams, an engaging Strephon; [illegible] Hall, a widowy Iolanthe; [illegible] Wright, vastly amusing in the [illegible] and braids of the lord chancellor; John Barclay and J. Humbird Duffey, a pair of ermined earls, [illegible] Langien, daintiest of the nymphs, and a corus of voices that only would have delighted Gilbert and Sullivan themselves were they [illegible] to hear [illegible] added zest to a most excellent show.

The opera tonight is "The Pirates of Penzance."

CIRCUS PROVES BIGGEST AND BEST EVER

The "Greatest Show on Earth" is here, at the Sullivan Square grounds, Ringling's and Barnum's combined.

Goliath, the gargantuan sea lion, excited the wonder and admiration of all who saw him as he gulped his huge fish dinner. Goliath, named for the giant target for David's missile, is one of the rarest spectacles in the history of the circus

Miss Leitzel, proclaimed the queen of aerial gymnasts thrilled; Con Colleano, the tumbling, somersaulting acrobat of the wire, amazed; but the breathlessly daring performance of the Wallenda troupe was tremendous. They are peers of all slack wire artists.

Alfredo Codona accomplishes a triple somersault that evokes thunders of applause. Hugony sisters make their first appearance and give an exhibition of strength.

Well-trained animals, smart elephants, clever seals, sly zebras are in acts that make everybody glad.

There are five rings and all are busy from the moment after the grand parade has finished until well toward 11 o'clock. If there is eye strain today or mild astigmatism, no one will care—having watched five things at once.

Those in the bleachers see good acts as well as those in the reserved seat section. The chairs are comfortable and the circus is the best, busiest and biggest that ever came to town.

If you know the old saw about asking your mother for 50 cents to see the elephant jump the fence, ask her. It's a great money's worth

MAJESTIC—"Good News," a musical comedy of boys and girls in an up-state college. Fast entertainment.

WILBUR—Irene Bordoni in "Paris." A mixture of French farce, American comedy and lively songs.

SHOW AT B. F. KEITH'S SCORES THROUGHOUT

Al Shean, of the famous Gallagher and Shean team, was a tonic for the tired business man and all the others who needed a good laugh, in a jazzy act called, "Business Is Business," at B. F. Keith's. Miss Lynn Cantor, formerly of the Greenwich Village Follies, supplied the beauty in the mirthful skit, written expressly for the pair by William K. Wells.

Joe Reagan, Boston boy, pleased with his rich Irish tenor voice and was recalled several times by enthusiastic admirers.

A musical extravaganza entitled "Maddock's Tricks," was executed by a company of [illegible] girls with good voices. Several artistic scenes lent colorful setting.

The humorous side of automobile driving and of politics was brought out in "A Timely Sermon," by Joe Browning. Other acts included a dancing number by Eve Sully and Jesse Block; "Those Syncopating Entertainers" by Combe and Nevins and several other star acts, followed by the latest Pathe News, Topics of the Day and Aesop's Fables.

MARION DAVIES AT ORPHEUM

"The Patsy," an entertaining comedy-drama, taken from a famous stage play that amused Broadway for more than a year, is Marion Davies' latest starring photoplay at Loew's Orpheum.

Included in the cast of "The Patsy" are Marie Dressler, Orville Caldwell, Jane Winton, Del Henderson and Lawrence Gray. King Vidor directed the new feature for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

As the embarassed flapper who seeks to win her sister's beau by developing her personality via the correspondence course route, Miss Davies has an ideal comedy role which has been acclaimed as her very best contribution to the screen.

Loew's vaudeville bill offers as headliner Janet of France, a piquant Parisienne comedienne, who is the star of a cherry skit called "La Comedie Militaire."

Second honors go to McKee and O'Connor revue, a smart musical comedy tabloid presented by the Royce sisters, Sidney Franklin and Carl Ritchie. Sam Hearn, rube comedian, entertained in grand style with his odd characterizations and violin selections.

Remaining acts are Dare and Yates in "Showing Off"; Dolan and Gale in a variety of songs and Alex Melford trio.

Short film subjects and M-G-M newsreel complete the program.

On to the "fishing grounds" in a good used car. Select from bargins in Classified columns.

100th Performance

"Good News," the collegiate musical comedy now holding forth at the Majestic, will celebrate its 100th performance in Boston at the matinee, tomorrow. When this popular offering of Schwab and Mandel opened in Boston some thirteen weeks ago, predictions were made that it would last a long time, and now it looks very much like an all-summer run.

COUNTRY'S BEST JUMPERS AT BROOKLINE

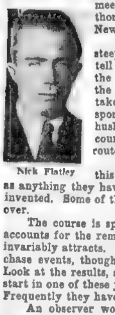
Boston gets ready to go to the horses. Boston has very little of the sport of the money kings, but what is put on here tops anything that the country offers. The annual Country Club meet gives more kick to the real lover of the thoroughbred than any racing staged at the big New York, Maryland or Kentucky tracks.



Nick Flatley

Your real horseman will talk only of steeplechasing. That is real racing, he will tell you, the sort that shows the true mettle of the real stout hearted animal. The sprints on the flats are just workouts for a good horse, take it from the boys who breed them for the sport of it. But the pony who can carry a husky rider over two or three miles of rolling country, jumping hedges and ponds along the route, is something worth spending millions for.

The race course at Brookline is the best in this country, as good, we have been informed, as anything they have in England, where the steeplechase was invented. Some of the Clyde Park jumps are famous the world over.

The course is sporty, beyond all doubt, and perhaps that accounts for the remarkable entry list the Eastern Horse Club invariably attracts. The big tracks have difficulty filling their chase events, though they schedule but one every other day. Look at the results, and you will see that often but two horses start in one of these jump affairs; never more than four or five. Frequently they have to be scratched off the card.

An observer would think, naturally, that there were no jumping horses in this broad land. But the Country Club meeting knocks that belief ninety miles southwest. Four chases are on each of the two days' program, and every last one of them is filled to overflowing. Fans at Brookline, in almost every jumping race, see at least ten horses flying at the first hedge.

Two or three usually come to grief there, but generally a half dozen come pounding in to the finish. The remnants of the Brookline fields are more numerous than the entries in the big stakes elsewhere.

This Eastern Horse meet is getting more popular each year. The public has come to know that it isn't an exclusive affair, for members only. The boys who get their synthetic thrills playing the local handbooks, or watching the movies, have this spot marked down in their books, for their annual dash of the real thing.

For a fine afternoon's outdoor fun, with plenty of excitement thrown in, you would look far to pick anything that might come close to the C. C. meet.

AGAINST THE LAW, PERHAPS, BUT YOU CAN LAY YOUR MONEY AND TAKE YOUR CHOICE.

Someone said the public did not know the Brookline meet was an open affair. Come in and listen to the public call up for Annie Oakleys

JIMMY MALONEY ON TOP OF WORLD AGAIN

JAMES DYNAMITE MALONEY won more popularity bouncing up off the floor seven times last evening than ever he knew when he was knocking the other chaps back on their new haircuts. Jimmy was a Boston idol one short year ago. He was hailed as the successor to John L. and all that sort of thing

Then Jack Sharkey flattened him, two or three other boys hit him on the chin, and the word was passed that he couldn't "take it." That's a fatal weakness in a hero. The boys put thumbs down on James and said they hoped he meant it when he announced his retirement.

Most of them went up to Braves Field to see Jimmy smacked right out of the picture. The Bronx cheer could be heard as he stopped one in the first round and went down. But the jeers changed when Jimmy hauled himself to his feet and proceeded to wade in. He was hit with everything but the left field bleachers and he had plenty of excuse to let the count go on; to escape what looked like annihilation.

Jimmy was out to show the gang that he could "take it." And now he put himself in right again. Already there are whispers of another row with Sharkey. The wild howl that greeted the decision, a howl of joy and approval for a change, must have made James Maloney believe that the fight game isn't so bad after all.

The melancholy days have come
When each fan tears his hair;
And raves that all the springtime dope,
Was nothing but hot air.

BRAVES BLEACHERS TOO CLOSE—FOR THE ENEMY

WORK has started on new bleachers at Braves Field. The flytrap is going to be moved back. This will cost the ball club more money than a successful season might bring and there is no sign yet of that kind of a season. A straw vote of experts had it that the new stands were too close

The Boston experts were not influenced, to be sure, by the fact that hostile clubbers dropped two onions into the adjacent seats to every one propelled there by a Brave. Naturally not. Moving the stands back up against the fence will make the ball park a bit better for the game as the athletes think it should be played.

But we still believe the crowds like the sudden homers. The doubled attendance, with the club losing, points that way. So, too, does the wild cheering that arises when the agate goes sailing out of sight. But the Braves, as usual, were unlucky and couldn't find the range. So the public jury demanded a change.

JIM WINS FAVOR BY COURAGE

Roberti Next Opponent; Jim Down Seven Times, but Refused to Stay

By JACK CONWAY

JIM MALONEY got up off the floor seven times to come on to win over Jack DeMave in their ten-round battle before 15,000 persons at an Argonne A. A. show at Braves Field.

Jim also went down once when socked after the bell sounded in the second round, but on this occasion also he scrambled to his feet.

Jack Conway

Once Maloney took a count of six, while on another occasion he took the benefit of a count of three. On the other five times that DeMave's punches sent the South Boston heavyweight sprawling to the canvas, he got up without taking any part of the count

Maloney showed a world of courage in the face of terrific punishment. He came back fighting.

After five rounds, DeMave blew wide open and Maloney smashed his way to victory. In the seventh session, DeMave went to the canvas as a result of one of Maloney's driving left hand wallops to the body.

The "Blonde Tiger" took a heavy [illegible] during the last five sessions. After the bout Billy McCarney, DeMave's manager, announced that the collapse of his protege was due to the fact he broke his left hand in the fourth frame

"If DeMave were a more experienced boxer he would have finished Maloney in those early rounds," said McCarney. "I think it should make a good return bout."

DeMave will have to wait for the Maloney shot as the South Boston warrior is signed to mingle with Roberto Roberti. This bout will be staged at Braves Field some time in July.

The bout doped. This writer picked Maloney to win on points in 10 rounds.

DeMAVE weighed 191 pounds, Maloney 196. The rival heavyweights both appeared to be in the best of condition.

Right out of the box in the first round, DeMave dropped Maloney with a left hook to the chin. Jim got up without taking any of the benefit of the count. He ran into a right to the jaw and his time took the count of six. Another righthander to the jaw dropped him for the third time.

The big fellows were battling at the bell. DeMave shot a right to the jaw and Maloney dropped to the canvas. Referee Joe O'Connor then sent the fighters to their corners.

Maloney went down twice more in the second round. Jim didn't seem to be able to stand up under any kind of a punch. He held his guard low, which made his jaw a wide open target.

In the third frame, DeMave dropped Maloney for the sixth time, a righthander to the chin doing the damage.

DeMave slipped during a mixup and Maloney assisted him to his feet.

Despite the heavy walloping he received in the first three sessions, Maloney spurted and he carried away the honors in the fourth frame

In the fifth frame, DeMave connected with another right jolt to the chin and Maloney hit the canvas once more. He refused to take a count and came back fighting

CANADA MAY SEE DEMPSEY-TUNNEY BOUT

By DAVIS J. WALSH,

New York, June 12—Local [illegible] hards, who somehow can't get the notion out of their heads that [illegible] Taylor's husband is a [illegible] were up and alive again [illegible] the story that [illegible] Montreal will see Jack Dempsey [illegible] a revival of the [illegible] with appropriate gestures, late September of this year.

Tex Rickard will be the promoter, they say, and of course Brother Tunney, the uplifter [illegible] be in there spreading [illegible] clean [illegible] the canvas.

It seems [illegible] firm and [illegible] retired, for Dempsey [illegible] even insist upon [illegible] Brother Tunney to announce [illegible] is off for a tour of the world directly after the Heeney business. The diehards—and their number is becoming greater as time goes on—simply are very superior and think up a new Dempsey rumor

This one today, however, appears to have considerably more solidity than the usual backstage stuff. It is supported, in fact, rather guardedly by one of Rickard's associates who was cautious enough, however, not to commit himself on anything definite, and the understanding is that Rickard had a conference last night with a representative of the National Boxing Association, which has control of the Canadian territory.

Personally, [illegible] Dempsey's announcements of retirement as being almost [illegible] that he will be back in there some time next [illegible] cannot see how the three-day [illegible] can blandly put on [illegible] year without embarrassing them [illegible] end

They have declared Dempsey [illegible] so often and so heatedly [illegible] bring him back [illegible] be to lay themselves open [illegible] and worse

Montgomery, Ala., June 12—Scandal mongers of this city who were after Manager Bill Pierre's scalp took one between the eyes last week when the club directors made a thorough investigation of charges and pledged absolute faith in Pierre. Some of the loose talkers had it that Pierre had received sums of money reputed to be in his share of wages laid against the Montgomery team. The directors found nothing to support the charges.

Dick Rudolph and Troy Quit Waterbury Club

Waterbury, Conn., June 12—Dick Rudolph, president and manager, and Phil Troy, secretary, have resigned from the Waterbury club of the Eastern League. The resignations are to take immediate effect. Both claim that the owner of the club failed to live up to agreements.

Rudolph, great Brave pitcher in the 1914 pennant fight, came here this year, after 15 years' steady service with the Braves, first as pitcher, then as scout and coach. Troy was traveling secretary of the Braves and had been connected with that club for years.

Neither of the retiring magnates intimated what his future plans might be. This was their first venture in minor league ball and friends here believe the pair will try to buy in on some other club in the circuit.

Fans Wonder What Will Happen to Al Mello

Boston boxing fans are wondering what will happen to Al Mello now. The Lowell welterweight had just been put back in good standing by the boxing commission after losing a scrap on a foul. Now he has gone and done it once more.

Al, boxing with Frankie O'Brien at Hartford, lost out in the fourth round, because of that foul habit. The scrap was for the N. E. welter title, and was Al's first appearance since his suspension was lifted

Another sentence by the commission would ruin a couple of good scraps that Mello's manager has on the fire. The Lowell boxer is one of those ripping, tearing birds who lets his punches go from all angles.

Lewis Will Meet Best of Arena Match Tourney

SONNY IS POPULAR CHOICE

Title Match Is Award for Wrestler Who Stands Out

Ed "Strangler" Lewis, heavyweight champion of the world, has agreed to defend his title late this month in a Boston ring against either Dynamite Gus Sonnenberg, Charlie Hansen, Joe "Bull" Komar or Stanley Stasiak

Lewis and Paul Bowser, local wrestling promoter, came to terms, and it was announced that Lewis would receive $15,000 to defend his crown against one of the four men who are to meet in the double-windup at the Arena Thursday night.

Sonnenberg is to test his superhuman strength and crashing tackle against Hansen, while Stasiak is to meet Komar for the rough-and-tumble championship of the mat

PLENTY OF URGE

With a match for the champion ship dangling [illegible] is certain [illegible] on Thursday night's card will give everything in an effort to show well. Hansen in particular wants a shot at that crown for if he happens to stop the winning streak of Sonnenberg, his battle with the title-holder would break all records for a New England wrestling meet

"Which of the four will meet Lewis will depend entirely on their showing Thursday," said Bowser after he announced that he had succeeded in signing Lewis for the largest purse ever offered a wrestler to come to Boston

"A lot of fans would like to see Hansen in there with Lewis. Still more would like to see Stasiak or Komar, for both of them have given Lewis rousing battles in the past

"Probably the majority would like to see Sonnenberg. He has improved faster than any wrestler I have ever known, and if he shows continued improvement Thursday, he may get the shot, though I don't want to spoil a splendid prospect by rushing him too fast"

SONNY A BEAR

Sonnenberg seems on his way to the heavyweight championship of the world He has faced many of the best wrestlers in the world. John Frieberg, who tossed two former champions—Wayne Big Munn and Wladek Zbyszko—and New York's contender, Hans Steinke, in a total time of less than 30 minutes, stood up against Sonnenberg's battering assault for only 40 minutes.

Munn failed to last two minutes. Sonnenberg is rushing to the top, and Hansen, even with Frieberg training him, will have a hard task in stopping him

The Stasiak Komar match also will be best two out of three falls to a finish, and every wrestling fan knows that the mere sight of Stasiak in action is worth the price of admission. He is the greatest showman Boston has ever known, and is still a huge drawing card after five years of campaigning here

The preliminary card was completed yesterday when the popular battler George McLeod was signed to meet Dr. Karl Sarpolis, John Spelman of Brown to face Frank Bruno, and Waino Ketonen, middleweight champion of the world, to test his skill and speed against Jack Martin, claimant of the world's welterweight title.

Tickets may be reserved at 333 Washington st., or by telephoning Hancock 0425

Sickness and Slumps Hit Crews

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 12 (INS)—Sickness and sudden slumps are causing eleventh hour changes in the boatings of the half dozen varsity crews which are putting on the finishing touches to their year's training for the inter-collegiate championship regatta to be rowed here next Tuesday.

Dick Glendon, veteran Navy coach, made a long-threatened change last night when he switched Sharp, No. 4 in the varsity, and Russell, No. 3 in the Jayvee shell

California's varsity is threatened with the loss of Caldwell at No. 7, who is suffering from a lame back

Penn has two invalids in Taefner, varsity stroke, and Armstrong, No 4, both of whom are suffering from sprains

Syracuse, too, has a man out of the shell in Joe Frawley, who has returned to Syracuse for commencement, while Washington has put through a wholesale swap of the bow three in the varsity for the bow three of the junior varsity.

SUMMER GOLF LEAGUE OPENS

Through the efforts of Mrs. J Mott Hallowell of The Country Club and Marion, the Cape Cod Women's League was formed last season and offered an opportunity for team match competition during the summer months.

It was the success of the Cape Cod League that caused the formation of the Newton-Suburban Summer League, which played its initial matches yesterday, at Albemarle, Framingham and Wellesley

Soon after the close of the Women's Golf Association of Boston season, a few members of that association, who were desirous of more competitive play, formed the Newton-Suburban Summer League, which is composed of Charles River, Commonwealth, Wellesley, Albemarle, Framingham and Sharon. The teams are composed of seven players and the Nassau system of scoring is in vogue

The Newton Suburban Summer League matches will be played on Mondays until August 10. Mrs. H. H. Ellis was chosen to captain the Charles River Country Club team Miss Mae Kennedy will lead the Commonwealth Club, Mrs. C. F. Rich, Wellesley; Mrs. W. E. Mackay, Albemarle; Mrs G. M. Crowther Framingham, and Mrs Harold V. Kaser will be in charge of the Sharon team

Plans are now under way for the winners of the Newton-Suburban Summer League to play off with the champions of the Cape Cod Women's League, which organization will start within a fortnight. The Plymouth Country will not be a member of the Cape Cod League this summer, as the trip to the landing place of the Pilgrims is too far and strictly speaking, Plymouth is not on the Cape. The Cape Cod League will be made up of teams from Marion, Pocasset, Kittansett, Bass River, Falmouth and Wood's Hole.

With the Newton-Suburban and the Cape Cod leagues in action this summer, the women golfers should be in far better fettle for their fall matches than they ever have been in the past. This summer competition will be responsible for the development of many women golfers and will greatly increase the interest in the game among the fair sex of this district.

It is possible that a South Shore Women's League will be in action this season. There are some good golfers at Crow Point, South Shore, Cohasset, Hatherly, Scituate, Marshfield and Plymouth and these players would welcome an opportunity to play team matches this summer

Kirby Wins N. E. Light Heavy Title

Tom Kirby of Roxbury was crowned New England light heavyweight champion at the New Bedford American Legion show when he defeated Jimmy Mendez, a home town boy.

Kirby was brilliant from the opening gong to the final. The Roxbury boxer dropped his opponent three times, once in the third round, once in the ninth round and once in the final round.

A badly hacked and scrawny Eagle, his once sharp claws dulled by two successive defeats, will attempt to frustrate the lance of the Holy Cross Crusader at University Heights this afternoon.

It might seem that this afternoon's battle is little more than an aftermath. But there should be a real ball game at the Heights. The sharp rivalry still exists

Boston College will send John Lefty Shea after his third game It will be his parting shot for his Alma Mater, for Lefty leaves the college with his sheepskin on Thursday afternoon.

He partially stemmed the Purple tide after he relieved McNulty in the second game at Fenway and for four innings seemed to have the Holy Cross number

With Captain Fred McMenimen behind the plate the Eagles will be using this battery for the last time, McMenimen graduates next Thursday.

Andy Morris in right field, Fred Moncewicz at short and Herb Stokinger in center field are the other veterans who will attempt to beat Holy Cross in their last game under the Eagle banners.

Holy Cross' battery will be Ray Dobens and Dick Phelan. Dobens has won all his games this spring and has played often in right field because of his hitting ability.

Umpires—Stafford and Kelleher

By TED LYNCH

Coach Fred Mitchell is still looking for that victory rainbow after the incessant rain of defeats which has descended on his Harvard ball team in the last month.

Manager George Abbott, former chairman of the graduate baseball committee, has collected no less than six ex-diamond captains in his roster of players

Abbott announced this morning that Eddie Goode and Josh Young would twirl, with Dick Harte, one of Harvard's greatest catchers, on the receiving end

The grad infield has Henry Nash at first, Jocko Conlon, formerly of the Braves, at second, Rothfeld at short, and the aggressive Eddie Lincoln playing third.

In the outfield the Alumni has Lee Todd, George Owen and Tack Hardwick, three leading lights in Harvard sport history.

With such an array of real ball talent to face, Coach Mitchell will send Willie Howard, one of his regular hurlers, on the mound.

The grads licked Howard in 10 innings last year and he has a revengeful eye today toward the alumni batters,

The main fault with Harvard's nine has been on the slab. Jack Barbee and Frank Cutts, veterans, have weakened of late. Dick Ketchum, promising junior, has not pitched since the opening game on the schedule.

MR. BOSTON

By Jack Conway

"ANOTHER ball park for big league boxing," remarked Mr. Boston as he read the announcement that Al Mello had signed to defend his title as New England welterweight champion against Billy Murphy at Fenway Park on June 21.

"Bob Quinn, like most American League club owners, was for years opposed to using ball parks for anything but baseball," went on the veteran. "Boxing promoters have long considered Fenway Park one of the best spots for boxing in the country. Quinn, however, turned thumbs down on any proposition which concerned boxing

"I believe this decision was in line with the policy of Ban Johnson who maintained that the big league clubs should not put up costly stands to be used by boxing promoters.

"Modern conditions have brought about a change in the attitude of the club owners towards the boxing situation. The average major league ball park is used only about 75 times a year for baseball. Meanwhile taxes, mortgage charges and other expenses keep rolling up.

"Baseball magnates have come to the conclusion that a wise financial policy calls for them to rent their parks for boxing, football, soccer and other athletic events and carnivals when possible. They have discovered that the tax assessors and the bankers do not allow any rebate merely because ball parks are not engaged at all times.

"I believe Fenway Park will prove very popular with boxing fans. The location of the stands will afford a close-up of the ring which is what the fans get at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn Ebbets Field has proved more popular with Greater New York boxing devotees than either the Yankee Stadium or the Polo Grounds.

"COL. BOB McKIRDY of the Arena Club has secured the boxing rights at Fenway Park He says Bob Quinn has had a special portable floor built which will cover the diamond The ring will be placed on this floor at about the pitcher's box. Four thousand seats will be located on the floor around the ring, while there will be 10,000 grandstand and box seats. The first base pavilion will care for many more thousands of fans

"It is McKirdy's plan to only promote shows of major importance at the ball park. His opening card, a title event with Mello and Murphy, the headliners, sets a high standard.

"Before the summer boxing season closes, the Colonel plans to put on five or six other big shows,

"With weekly boxing shows at Braves Field, Boston fans are going to be furnished with plenty of fistic fireworks during the outdoor season."

MR. BOSTON revealed that Tex Rickard is a little bit doubtful about the drawing powers of the Tunney-Heeney bout which will be staged on July 26

"As part of his plan to give Tunney and Heeney all of the steam possible," said the veteran, "Rickard has asked Jack Sharkey to remain out of action in New York until September. It was originally planned to use Sharkey in a major battle in New York early in July. Rickard now feels that a Sharkey match at this time might take away too much interest from Tunney and Heeney. So Jack has been asked to sit back until September when he will be pitted against Risko, Godfrey or Paulino in an outdoor attraction

"Rickard spiked the report Dempsey was going to fight Tunney in September by guaranteeing Sharkey a shot at the old Tiger in the event he re-enters the ring again.

"Sharkey will keep tuned up by engaging in several warm up matches. He is in New York getting ready for his tussle with Leo Gates in St. Louis on next Tuesday night. On the way back to Boston from St. Louis, Sharkey will probably stop off at Cincinnati and Columbus for tussles with local ring heroes.

"It is anticipated that these three tussles will net Sharkey between $15,000 and $20,000. More important, they will keep him in condition. Long layoffs ruin star boxers more than right hand punches."

HARVARD PICKS WATTS' SHELL

Red Top, Connecticut, June 12—The Harvard crews took most of their morning workout to select the boat which they are to use in the annual race with Yale. A two-mile row up and down the river, and a change of shells in between, convinced the varsity that the Pocock boat presented to it by Ridley Watts, father of Jack Watts, was the faster of the two shells in question.

The junior varsity eight, which has not had any time trial up to date, is slated to go two miles for time this week. The crew has been improving of late, and should turn in a creditable performance.

The varsity eight rowed to the three-mile mark later in the day. The stroke was held down to about 34, while Ed Brown paid close attention to the fine points of form.

There were several things which dissatisfied the coach during the Saturday row, and he worked hard to smooth out the stroke of some of the members of the varsity.

Ed Leader gave the Yale varsity a pair of light workouts today, with the time trial of the training period scheduled to be pulled off shortly.

Mose King, Yale boxing instructor, who arrived today, was somewhat dissatisfied with several of the articles of diet on the Yale menu, so at his recommendation the meals will be altered immediately.

MALONEY BACK IN FAVOR

DeMave then blew wide open and from then on it was all Maloney. Jim's splendid physical condition carried him through the last five rounds at a lively pace.

EDDIE CURLEY of Roxbury and Frankie Moore of Medford furnished a stirring battle with Moore winning the verdict. Honors were about fifty-fifty.

George Carney of the North End won from Frankie Provencher of Canada in six sessions.

Phil Flanagan of Malden disposed of Spike Hennessey of Waltham in four chapters, the referee stopping the contest.

Freddy O'Connor of South Boston won on a foul from Freddy Martin of the North End in three sessions.

Jimmy McGonnigal of Weymouth won over Young Hennessey of Fall River in four rounds, while Terry Mitchell of Somerville outscored Frank Johnson of White River in four heats.

Cuici Leads in Open Golf Play

FIVE PROS WILL GO TO CHI

Ogg, Cowan McAndrews and Aulbach Also Qualify; Finlay Out

BY BILL GRIMES

The New England District will be represented by the cream of its professional golfers at the United States open in Chicago, for Henry Cuici, of Mill River; Willie Ogg, Worcester; John Cowan, Oakley; Charlie MacAndrews, Laconia, and George Aulbach, the New England pro champion, qualified at Charles River yesterday.

Henry Cuici who is the open champion of Florida, played super golf in the morning round when he turned in a 68. He scored four "birdies," and was even par on the other fourteen holes. His 144 for the day was the low score, one better than that of Ogg.

Cuici is one of the real stars of the professionals in this country and it will not be surprising if he finishes well inside the money at Olympia Fields.

While Ogg was in rare form at Charles River. Playing with Cuici the Worcester professional held the lead from the [illegible] fourth hole to the seventeenth, where a trap shot cost him a four and allowed Cuici to pull up on even terms, when the Connecticut boy canned a six footer for a deuce. Cuici's par on the eighteenth gave him a one stroke advantage to start the afternoon round.

Cuici and Ogg had a better [illegible] 64 for their two rounds. Ogg's outward round in the a. m. was [illegible] Ogg's deuce on the eleventh was the only help to Cuici's 84 [illegible] the trip home.

The failure of Cyril Walker, the former U. S. open titleholder, to put in an appearance was a great disappointment. Walker did not even bother to notify Freddie Corcoran that he would not play, and Phillips Finlay, who was drawn to play with him, waited around all morning and finally was sent out with Joe Stein and Hugh Gorton.

Phillips Finlay was forced to play through the qualifying round without his pet driver, which he broke a couple of days ago. Finlay drove with his spoon and did a remarkably fine job.

Johnnie Farrell leaves New York today for Chicago, where he will make another bid to capture the United States open title, now held by Tommie Armour. Farrell was in a putting slump at Oakmont last year and the only thing he won was the prize for being the best dressed golfer.

But this same Johnnie Farrell is [illegible] is sure to break [illegible] This [illegible] be a good year for [illegible] Walter [illegible] carrying the [illegible] and Bobby Jones battling to regain the crown he lost in Pittsburgh.

The field at Charles River for the [illegible] round was the smallest [illegible] 40 players had sufficient [illegible] to enter and only 33 [illegible] Among the absentees were [illegible] the former U. S. open champion, [illegible] McAndrews, Dick Way, Jack Stait, Harry [illegible] Herb Lagerblade and George Gorton.

Leroy "Rocky" Kelley, the former Dartmouth halfback, is taking a course of golf lessons from Charlie MacAndrews at Laconia, N. H. and as soon as he is able to give less time to [illegible] and more to practice, he will be heard from on the links.

Joe Stein and Bud Clancy of the North Shore Golf and Tennis Club, did a job on the Campbell brothers, Jack and Archie, in a recent exhibition match. The Salem Country Club professionals challenged the North Shore pair and it cost them $50 to speak out of turn.

ONE BIG IDEA IN ALL THESE MINDS---"TORO"

LAUREL WREATH FOR GREAT-HEARTED AMERICAN DERBY KING

Toro, winner of the American Derby, run at Arlington Park, Illinois, is shown with Jockey Ambrose holding the floral blanket of the conqueror on his knees. Behink Toro is a section of the throng of over 50,000 race fans who watched the contest. Misstep, the favorite, was well in the lead for most of the race, but in the home stretch Toro raced past the front three horses to win by a good margin. E. B. McLean, the owner of the horse, collected a purse of $22,175 for the race. Toro proved a good investment for his backers. A $2 ticket paid $15.44 for the horse.

MELLO SIGNS TO BOX MURPHY JUNE 21

Al Mello, New England welterweight champion, will defend his title against Bov Murphy of Lowell, his fellow townsman, in the feature bout of the New Boston Arena A. C. at the grand opening of [illegible] Park on the night of June 21, one week from Thursday.

The match was signed by Col. Bob McKirdy only after local promoters had been attempting to snare it for the past six months. Murphy is the single, solitary welterweight with an even chance of taking the welterweight crown from the beetling crown of Mello, and apparently Mello had little desire to risk his title against his fellow townsman.

On his record Murphy is one of the outstanding welterweights in the game. He defeated Johnny Indrisano decisively, and John whipped both Champion Joe Dundee and Tommy Freeman cleanly. He punched plain and fancy holes in Jack Zivic, winning easily where Mello was hard-pushed to win two close decisions from the same Zivic.

He knocked out Meyer Cohen in eight rounds, and though Mello also knocked out Cohen in the same number of rounds, Murphy was far more spectacular, far more convincing in victory than Mello was.

It is believed that Murphy's style had something to do with Mello's unwillingness to meet him. The [illegible] from Lowell is [illegible] with pipestem arms. As is usual with most of the thin-armed boxers he is a terrific puncher. In addition, he is one of the cleverest boxers in the game, with a lightning right jab and a smart left cross.

The boxing game has been in a slump here while Mello has remained out of the ring. The colorful aggressive welterweight always never fails to pack in the fans. Even when pitted against a mediocre opponent, and even when he is a 10 to 1 choice, the fans flock to see Mello, for they know that he always gives action, always gives thrills, always gives his very best.

Tickets will go on sale at the Arena A. C. office, 333 Washington st., room 315, tomorrow morning at nine o'clock. Tommy Parle, old secretary of the Suffolk A. A., has been engaged to take charge of the ticket distribution and reservations may be made by telephoning Liberty 8707.

Round the Links With BOBBY JONES

By BOBBY JONES
National Amateur Champion

FOR some reason, present day golfers seem to overlook to a great extent the possibilities of the once popular spoon. Possibly that tendency may be due partly to the fact that the increased range of the ball has brought most of the second shots within range of the middle-distance irons, but I do not think that is all of the reason.

I know many players who will always extend themselves with the iron rather than resort to the wood. It seems to be a matter of pride with them that they will not allow others to think that they must use a wood club on such and such a hole.

The wood clubs were more popular in the old days probably because the old "guttie" was so hard and unyielding that the shock it gave to the iron blade more than offset the player's desire to be credited with more power than he possessed.

It must have been a relief then to take out the spoon or brassie and know that one's fingers would not be cracked by the slightest mishit.

Those who insist upon employing an iron to do the work of the spoon lose sight of the real object of the game. They forget that the successful execution of the shot, and not with what club it was done, is what counts. It does not matter if A reaches No. 15 once with a drive and mid-iron and messes up the hole five times, if B is always close with a drive and spoon or brassie.

HAROLD HILTON was probably, from all accounts, the greatest [illegible] of the [illegible] ever known. He is reputed to have been able to play with it a shot of little more than mashie distance with startling accuracy.

I would not urge upon anyone, however, the [illegible] of [illegible] ing the club too much. Even allowing for the wonderful skill which Mr. Hilton possessed.

I do not believe he could bring off today with the lively ball, some of the spoon shots I have heard and read about his playing. The modern ball, quick upon the ground as well as off the club, needs the lofted club to control it for the shorter distances.

The spoon for use today should be designed to cover the range between the number two iron and the brassie. By that I mean the club should be of such loft that it can be spared to approximate the range obtainable with a number two and forced to reach nearly that of the brassie.

In that way it will cover completely the field assigned to the number one iron with which it ought to be nearly interchangeable.

TAKE my own case as an example. I do not like to play a long shot from a tight lie. I never seem to be able to get the control I like to have. So invariably in that case I employ a spoon, playing the shot with a slight cut to get it up quickly.

Again, I do not like to play a full iron shot with the wind off my right, because I know that I am apt to hook if I do. That is the place for a spared spoon shot fading a bit into the wind for control.

SIMILARLY, as a substitute for the brassie, the spoon works equally well. Suppose we need a full shot to the green and the wind is blowing across from left to right and the lie is close.

In getting the ball up with the straight-faced brassie, the almost necessary result is a slicing spin which exaggerated by the wind may carry the ball many yards off the line.

But the loft of the spoon will elevate the ball without need of the spin and we can hit hard and confidently straight for the objective.

And to put the spoon to these uses is within the capabilities of even the ordinary player. The modifications in either direction are so slight that to make them it is only necessary to know what they are. No man who will get a spoon and use it within reasonable limits will ever allow himself to be again without one.

This latter group includes Tommy Armour, the defending champion, Bobby Jones, Gene Sarazen, Walter Hagen, Archie Compston, Arthur Havers, Harry Cooper, Bill Mehlhorn and other leading stars who finished among the first 30 at Oakmont in 1927. So many hopefuls sought one of the 20 places allotted the Chicago district that nightfall found a flock of them still out on the fairways. These late finishers will have to complete their rounds today before the successful contestants can be definitely determined. However, one famous star was certain of going to Olympia Fields. He was Chick Evans, former national open and amateur champion.

Evans showed much of the skill that brought him fame a few years ago when he put together two rounds of 74 and 73 for a 147 that [illegible] who managed to get home before nightfall.

In other districts several upsets contrived to eliminate stars who had confidently been expected to get at least as far as the title tourney itself. Roland MacKenzie, Washington star, and Clarence Hackney, of Atlantic City, failed to get within the select circle at Philadelphia where Bill Leach, Overbrook pro, set a course record of 144 to lead the field.

CLEVER PILOT SAVES PLANE FROM CRASH

The cleverest and also most puzzling bit of plane maneuvering ever witnessed at the Boston airport saved Howard Stark, airmail pilot, and three joy-riding pals from a crash today when the wind shifted and the air [illegible] went "dead."

With the [illegible] airmail pilot in Stark's own [illegible] were [illegible] of Sayward's, Inc., and Sam Cross and L. Tronkone of the Flying Cloud passenger service.

Stark was taking off to the West when the air "died" and the ship refused to leave the ground. The five-foot boundary beacon loomed up in front of the ship's nose, so Stark, by some strange trick that he couldn't explain himself, "lifted" the ship over the beacon with but half an inch to spare.

But the threat of extinction to the four men had just begun. Beyond the runway is a wilderness of clay hills and soppy hollows. His wheels hit the peak of one hill, bounded a bit, dipped, hit the next mound, bounced to another and another, with the ship in imminent danger of cracking every moment.

Then the hills were passed and the marsh was ahead. Stark set the plane down perfectly on the mossy ground, with but one aileron bent. He removed his helmet and scratched his head in perplexity.

When mechanics raced out and held the wings, he turned and taxied back over the hills to the port again.

WOMAN HIT BY WILD AUTOIST

Following his capture after an exciting chase which ended when his taxicab struck a woman, Barnett Freedman of Savin st., Dorchester, faced arraignment in Roxbury court today.

The charge against Freedman was failing to stop at a policeman's signal. Patrolman Burton W. Mullins was arresting officer.

The victim of Freedman's taxi during his flight through Roxbury and South End streets was Mrs. Esther Kerrigan, 40, of Dix st., Dorchester.

She was knocked down just after she alighted from a trolley car at Harrison ave. and Northampton st., South End.

The chase started when Freedman neglected to heed the command of Officer Mullins to stop on Warren st., in the Grove Hall section of Roxbury.

John T. Short of Atherton st., Jamaica Plain, was passing in his machine, which had as an occupant Edward J. Donelan of Ladder 23, Grove Hall, whose home is on Rosseter st., Dorchester. Patrolman Mullins commandeered this machine and instructed the driver to overtake the taxi driver, if possible.

At City Hospital Mrs. Kerrigan was treated for cuts and bruises to her left leg.

JUDGE SAYS POLICEMAN'S WRONG ANSWER IS RIGHT

"Is a man justified in resisting unlawful arrest?"

The answer of Police Sergt. Oscar W. Johnson, of Worcester, in the affirmative brought a petition for a writ of mandamus in Supreme court today, following a low mark in his examination for lieutenant. He seeks a higher mark from Civil Service Commissioners. Judge Carroll ventured an opinion that the answer was correct but took the case under advisement rather than have the court substitute itself for the Civil Service Commissioners."

Dressing Up Dessert Told by Martha Lee

By MARTHA LEE

MEMBERS of the Martha Lee School of Practical Cookery are particularly enthusiastic about a cocoa syrup which we recently made and which can be used not only as a base for many delicious summer drinks, but as a sauce for ice creams and puddings.

Best of all, this syrup will keep a month in an airtight jar in the refrigerator, and is as easily made as it is economical and delicious.

First, the ingredients called for are ½ cup of breakfast cocoa, 1½ cups sugar, a dash of salt, 1 cup of cold water and 2 tsps. vanilla.

Mix the cocoa, sugar, salt and water and place over direct heat and boil for three minutes, stirring constantly. Add 2 tsps. vanilla and pour into an airtight jar. Adjust the cover. Cool and place in the refrigerator.

This syrup may be used for hot or cold cocoa and for many cold chocolate drinks, mixing it with a shaker or a rotary egg beater.

For a richer syrup substitute 1 [illegible] of cocoa [illegible] cup of sugar for the proportions given. A [illegible] frosted chocolate is made with this syrup for a foundation.

To serve four, you will need 1 cup of heavy cream, whipped, [illegible] tbsps. of the rich cocoa syrup, 1 quart of milk and crushed ice. The utensils you will need are four tall glasses, 2 glass bowls, a pitcher, a tray and spoons.

Fold the cocoa syrup into the whipped cream and put the mixture in one bowl. Put [illegible] in the other. Pour the milk into the pitcher. Arrange the glasses on a large tray.

Put the ice in each glass, [illegible] tbsps. of the whipped cream mixture and fill up with milk. Mix thoroughly with a spoon. You can use the thinner cocoa syrup for this drink, but the richer mixture gives a fluffier, smoother and more attractive drink.

Each glass may, of course, be topped with a 1 tbsp. of whipped cream.

Four tbsps. of the plain cocoa syrup combined with a glass of milk and cracked ice shaken well makes a delicious milk shake. For egg nog, mix 4 tbsps. of the syrup with 1 glass of milk, add 1 egg yolk well beaten and shake well. Then fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites and pour on cracked ice.

Chocolate malted milk is an ideal in-between-meal drink [illegible] 4 tbsps. of the cocoa syrup with 1 glass of milk, 2 tbsps. of malted milk [illegible] and beat well. [illegible]

To prepare Mint Chocolate combine 6 tbsps. of the cocoa syrup, ½ [illegible] cream, ¼ tsp. of peppermint extract and cracked ice, in order given. Shake well.

A real chocolate soda is made by combining [illegible] tbsps. of cocoa syrup and ½ cup of [illegible] half bottle of [illegible] water and cracked ice. Shake well and pour into a tall glass. [illegible] ice cream.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

FIRST ANNIVERSARY

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My girl friend will be married one year next month. I would like to give her a gift but cannot decide what it should be.

May I have your suggestions?
M. S.

IF I were you I would not abide by the wedding anniversary symbols and give a paper gift to your friend. Rather I should plan to give her something that I think she would like for her house. One of the most useful gifts for the table is a set of four, or six, or eight, or a dozen, "tea" knives and forks. These have a great many uses, for breakfast, tea, supper and for buffet meals. They are also perfect to serve for the usual salad. They may be had in either sterling silver or in an excellent plate silver. Or perhaps you would like to give something in glass for her table, for glass is so especially lovely these days and made in such convenient details and containers. How about a lovely large glass bowl and plates, or just the salad bowl alone? Or a beautiful glass vase.

Matching Hosiery

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I have a canary yellow georgette dress and a pair of black satin pumps. The dress is trimmed with green and the pumps have a sort of silver trimming. My problem is the color of stockings to wear with it.

2—I am only 14 years of age and I think I am too young to wear chiffon stockings, don't you?
J. O. B.

THERE is a beautiful shade of flesh colored stockings that has a slight cast of yellow in it, and if you can locate this shade—they have such "strange" names for the different shades this year that I find it impossible to remember them and differentiate them—it will be perfect with your canary yellow frock.

2. No, you could correctly wear chiffon stockings.

Consult Legal Advice

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am about to marry an Englishman who has been in this country for four years. I understand that he deserted a ship to enter this country. I would like to know my own status as his wife in regard to citizenship and his chance of becoming a citizen.
F. W.

THIS is such a serious matter for your future happiness that you should consult a lawyer about your [illegible] the [illegible] Aid Society. [illegible] be casual or careless about this.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I had an argument with my girl friend and [illegible] is what it is all about. I told a man that I wanted to go to a certain show on Sunday, but I never made a date [illegible] to go because I have to go to church. He then invited me to go with him to the show on Saturday. I refused. My girl friend said I was hinting for him to take me, but that wasn't in my mind. Can you please help me out? Did that look like hinting or not? Was I right in refusing?
CHICKIE.

I CERTAINLY agree with your girl friend, except that "hinting" seems to me a to mild word. And why, after you had suggested that he invite you, did you refuse? I don't follow your reason for doing this. Did I miss the point?

DON'T DISPLAY GIFTS

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it correct for the wedding presents to be sent and displayed at the bride's home on the day of the wedding, or sent and displayed at the groom's home on the day after the wedding?
CONSTANT READER.

NOWADAYS the very best taste and the very best form suggest that wedding presents are not displayed except to one's closest friends. That is, usually the bride invites her closest girl friends to have tea with her a few days before the wedding, and at that time shows them her presents. But to have a "wholesale" display of the wedding presents does seem a bit over-done. However, if the wedding presents are to be displayed, the cards of the givers should be removed. It would be extremely bad form to send the wedding presents to the groom's home and display them there. The groom's friends will see them soon in the new home.

Marion Davies in "The Patsy"

Have You a Little Patsy in Your Home?

Have you a bashful little flapper who is always in the way, who has to take a back seat for big sister, who never, never gets a chance at the parlor sofa or the porch swing?

Marion Davies, in her newest picture, plays just such a person. How she got wise to herself and learned that personality is the secret of success provides one of the funniest comedies that ever came out of Hollywood.

A Story of Gay Life at Harvard; a Battle of Hearts Between Girls

CHAPTER 37

ON the matter of Gay's freedom there were numerous discussions. Day after day she brought the subject up, and worried about it verbally to Jerry. That she could not divorce Alan without Alan's consent and co-operation was acknowledged at the start. She would have no case, in any state. Therefore she must go to Alan—ah, but that was easy enough to say!

"If only he hadn't been so darned wonderful to me always," she wailed despairingly a hundred times.

Repeatedly she suggested that Jerry himself go to Alan. The idea of husband and lover dueling over her, dueling with words for weapons, was not without its melancholy appeal; besides, it would not be nearly so hard for her to approach Alan if Jerry went first and paved the way. . . .

But Jerry would not. "Impossible," he declared flatly. "Walk into a man's office and say, 'Listen here, old man, I'd like to marry your wife if you have no objections'—why, the thing's impossible, Gay! Don't you see it is? Things like that simply aren't done, except on the stage. No, sweetheart. I'll stand the gaff afterwards, whatever happens—but you'll have to break it to Alan yourself. There's no other way."

And once, when she insisted tearfully that the task was too great for her, that he must, he must relieve her of the burden of it, he became again the cold, indifferent Jerry of old and turned away, shrugging, saying, "Very well. If you don't consider it worth your trouble—" And then so panicky was she, instantly, and so eager to banish the terrifying chill from Jerry's eyes, that it never once occurred to her to say in return, "And if you don't consider it worth your trouble—"

Fate came to her aid. Less than a week after this episode had convinced her finally that there was indeed "no other way," an occasion for the difficult and dread talk with Alan presented itself to her ready made. . . .

She had been swimming at Sea Beach with Jerry all that sultry August day, and she came into the [illegible] at 5 in the afternoon, her [illegible] and cape rolled into a [illegible] under her arm, and found Alan home a little early for him, in the living room.

There Was Nothing in His Attitude to Warn Her

There was nothing in his attitude nor in the manner of his greeting to warn her that the catastrophic moment was near. He lay stretched out lazily in a long chair, reading; from a table beside him an electric fan, borrowed from the kitchen, swept him with artificial wind. At Gay's entrance he lowered his book and grinned a welcome. "Hullo, honey."

"Hello. Well! The tired business man—" She went to him mechanically and leaning over, touched her lips to his. "How long have you been home?"

"Oh, I don't know—15 minutes or so." He had her hand and was squeezing it, smiling up at her. "Cute," he said. "Gee, but you're cute! I never seem to get over it." And then, indicating the bundle she carried, "What's this thing? Did you find an abandoned infant on our doorstep?"

"It's my bathing suit," Gay answered casually. "I've been swimming all afternoon. Gretchen Wace and I, in the pool at the Shelton." This was the fib upon which she had decided on the way back from Sea Beach with Jerry. Yielding to the fibber's guilty impulse to make it a good one, a convincing one, replete with glib and authentic-sounding details, she said further: "It was so hot out today! Wasn't it? Just sweltering.

"We were going to do some shopping—Gretchen wanted to look for [illegible] panels and lamp shades and things for her new apartment—they're moving the first of September, you know. But neither of us could bear the thought of stuffy little decorators' shops on a day like this, so we waited the [illegible] hour after lunch and then made for the Shelton pool, and we've been [illegible] off in it ever since."

On a final impulse she pulled off her hat and fingered the back of her head. "My hair's still a little bit damp—"

Having been hatted tightly ever since her swim, her hair was damp. She was rather pleased with herself for having thought of it. It strengthened and substantiated the story. She ducked her head toward Alan. "Feel."

But Alan did not obey.

She straightened up and looked at him surprised, and as soon as she met his eyes her satisfaction wilted, for she saw that somewhere, somehow, she had erred . . . At the same time she realized that the hand with which she had touched her hair was the hand which Jerry had been holding. [illegible] When she [illegible]—no doubt—so when? At the beginning of her narrative? Or toward the end? She had not noticed, and could not remember.

Her Mind Fumbled Furiously to Obtain a Clue

Her mind fumbled curiously for a clue. Her body, without her conscious volition, backed away slowly several steps, until a chair nudged the curves of her legs and she dropped into it. She knew that she was very pale; that her eyes, held and accused by those gray eyes of Alan's, were dilated with alarm. "Wh-what's the matter?" she faltered. And her voice sounded little and husky and thin in her ears.

Alan was sitting upright now. . . . Of all her countless mental pictures of him, the one photographed on the lens of her memory at this moment was to be for the rest of her life the most vivid. Years later she would close her eyes sometimes and see his shoulders, square and solid, in the [illegible] bathrobe, his big hand planted against the chair back, pushing him forward, his steady, sorry gaze, and the way the fan beside him, swinging now right, now left, slightly stirred the crisp ruddy kinks of his hair. . . .

He said, "You were lying, weren't you?"

"N-not exactly—"

"I know you were lying," he went on quietly, "because I spent the afternoon in the pool at the Shelton myself. It was too hot to work. I telephoned you about noon, thinking we might do something together, but you had left. So I lunched at the Yale club and waited 'the well known hour'—and then I went over to the pool. I was there until half an hour ago.

"Of course," he supplemented in the same even tone, "I would have seen you if you'd been there."

Gay nodded [illegible], useless to argue it.

All sorts of thoughts made a dizzy [illegible] Instead she was thinking of the Shelton pool; of Alan in his swimming suit; of a pronouncement Irene Matthews once had uttered: "It's the unimaginable thing, Gay, the thing you didn't and couldn't anticipate, the one possibility you overlooked when you worked it all out beforehand, that always happens." Of that especially she was thinking. Irene had been so right!

Alan seeing herself and Jerry as they went [illegible] town in Jerry's car, Alan [illegible] Gretchen Wace somewhere during the afternoon [illegible] recognized, and asked [illegible] that afternoon at the pool at the Hotel Shelton [illegible] could she have foreseen that? [illegible] As far as she knew, [illegible] had never been swimming [illegible] before.

As [illegible] her thoughts [illegible]

[illegible] he said, "I [illegible] expected to find you there. That's why I went. You've been in that pool, or so you've told me you have—so many afternoons this summer."

So many afternoons this summer. [illegible] It brought back Jerry's [illegible], dark eyes, [illegible] "[illegible] don't consider it worth your trouble—" Well, now, then. Now was the time.

She drew a quick, full breath. "I was lying," she admitted. "I went swimming, but not at the Shelton, and not with Gretchen. I went swimming [illegible] at Sea Beach with—with Jerry Davis."

"W[illegible]"

"Jerry Davis."

There was a [illegible] pause. An endless [illegible]

[illegible] Jerry Davis," he said, [illegible] "I remember you [illegible]"

"I remember that too," Alan's voice was harsh, queer; not Alan's voice at all. "I told you he was rotten. And in spite of that, you— Look here, Gay. Look at me."

He waited until Gay's eyes had crept to the level of his.

"I want to get this straight," he said, and his voice was more [illegible] now than [illegible]. "You've been seeing this [illegible] lately?"

"Yes."

"Often?"

"Y-yes."

"How often?"

"Well—" began Gay, and stopped. For just an instant she was terribly afraid. What would he do to her? What would he say? . . . The old accustomed instinct for evasion seized her. Her [illegible]

"No," said Alan quickly, "[illegible]. Not any more. I want the whole truth this time."

So she gave it to him.

It was a long story, covering several years. She told it hesitantly at first. Then more firmly. Finally, as she talked of the months just past, quite firmly and with something like pride. There was a delight in hearing herself say aloud, again and again, that Jerry loved her; she became impressed as never before with the depth and strength of his love. She became a little dramatic. [illegible] plays she had witnessed, [illegible] with the vocal [illegible] of actresses she had heard, she [illegible] her narrative:

"Inevitable . . . one of those things that simply can't be [illegible] you see, Alan . . . fought against it, both of us . . . tried to forget, honestly tried to find happiness apart . . ."

And all the while Alan [illegible] moved, never spoke, never took his eyes from her.

"He wants to marry me," she wound up. "And Alan, I want that too. I want it more than anything. So," she finished, "now you know."

But Alan made no comment.

His silence was irritating. His relentless scrutiny was [illegible] it made her feel [illegible], fidgety. Why didn't he say something? Why must he stay so still, and look at her so [illegible]? She hated that look. It wasn't angry; she was armored against wrath. It wasn't reproachful, it wasn't [illegible], it wasn't even [illegible]. It was curious. Merely and insultingly that.

"You're looking at me," she said slowly, "as if I were a [illegible] brand new kind of insect. You're looking at me the way people look at [illegible] they've read about in the [illegible] divorce stories. Alan, [illegible] looking at me like that! Can't you—understand at all? Why don't you say something?"

"There's nothing to say," said Alan.

He reached to the table for his pipe. He filled it, pinched the [illegible] into the bowl with his thumb. [illegible]

[illegible]

But when you tell me you love Jerry Davis, [illegible]

Gay supposed he could. She regarded the fists and the shoulders, and thought reluctantly how [illegible]

[illegible] do you, [illegible]

Alan shrugged. "No." And he [illegible]

Cleonie Starts Out on Her Flight

Then, at last, she rose and removed her boots. She took up the guttering candle, and very softly withdrew the bolts of her door. Cautiously, soundlessly, she opened it, and soundlessly crept out into the room beyond, which now was all in darkness. A moment she paused, listening. From beyond the far door came a sound of mild snoring. The citizen-representative was asleep.

"Business of the nation." The young secretary's voice was hard and peremptory. He flourished his portfolio. "I am to ride ahead of the citizen-representative into Nevers. There is urgency. Make haste, or you will answer to the citizen-representative."

The ostler asked no more questions. A horse was quickly saddled, and upon this the young secretary, with a seat suggestive of a horseman rather than a clerk, vanished at the gallop into the night.

The ostler answered at random that the youth had ridden off in the direction of Nevers.

At last Chauviniere controlled himself.

"[illegible] me a horse," he commanded, and on that horse he was himself riding [illegible] to Nevers within ten minutes, leaving the [illegible] to follow with the chaise.

He rode at a pace which reflected the fury of his mind. More even than the loss of the girl did it enrage him to think that a man of his wit and acumen should have permitted that smoothly spoken, lying pretense of [illegible] weakness, and [illegible] fooled him into an excess of [illegible] so as to [illegible] conquest ultimately more [illegible]. He paused at Rougues to munch a [illegible] and drink a glass of brandy [illegible] for he had ridden away [illegible] La Charite—then [illegible] on again, reaching Nevers at noon.

He went straight to the president of the Revolutionary Committee of Nevers, a heavy-bodied, lumbering tanner named Desjardins, and stated his immediate need. His papers had been stolen last night at La Charite by a youth whom he had befriended, and whom he was [illegible] was a girl, a cursed aristocrat, no doubt. She was [illegible] to have ridden off in the direction of Nevers. She might attempt to pass herself off as Constance [illegible] her recapture was of the utmost importance. Heads would fall if she were not retaken. [illegible] would see to that. [illegible] was summoned to assemble at once the agents of the committee of safety to inform them of the case, and to stimulate them to hunt down the thief.

"And they had better be active," [illegible], "or by Saint Guillotine, I'll give them a lesson [illegible]."

With that the representative went off to dine at the Auberge du Soleil, whither the chaise had been ordered to follow.

But please say for me that there has never been any intention of substituting another player for Constance."

HOLLYWOOD will see [illegible] the stage [illegible] westward, lured [illegible] the [illegible] of the talking pictures. The rumor along Broadway that [illegible] producers are signing players with good speaking voices regardless of photographical possibilities is responsible for this "Westward Ho" movement.

Everywhere one hears the same question. Is it true that all the screen stars are worried over talking pictures? I have not heard any expressions of fear. The players who have established a following will not easily be replaced.

There is no reason why our screen players need be eliminated from the talkies. Warner Brothers seems to bear me out in this idea. They are about to put into vitaphone a[illegible] "The Little Wildcat," by Gene Wright. Audrey Ferris, without a minute's stage experience, a Wampas star, has the feminine lead.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

THIS whirling world of ours spins on in answer to some call; some need brought forth the dusk, the dawn, and seas that circle all.

In primal times dim longings brought their answers in their train, a secret [illegible] first [illegible] man's thought and waked the sleeping brain.

Earth ever answers hour by hour, each need man's [illegible] some sad heart longed for beauty's dower, its answer is the rose!

Police have been requested to spare no effort to capture one Frank Foster Davis, for inadvertently telling this one—

SCOLDING A HABIT

By LUCY LOWELL

SCOLDING, it seems to me, is a habit. A demoralizing habit, of course; one which stirs discord in homes, disrupts families and demoralizes lives.

But a habit nevertheless; the scold does not realize she is acquiring it until, perhaps, she finds her family and everybody else seeing just as little of her as they possibly can and acting as if they wished that little were still less.

I say "her," you notice—and mean it. For it is women who scold; something in the feminine nature which, unless it is understood and watched, lends itself to the chronic irritation expressed in constant fault-finding, a cross expression, disagreeable manners.

Mind—I don't say there are no male scolds. But those are the exception. Ten to one if a man has something on his mind he tells you about it and lets it go at that.

Most women, however, are less straightforward, disinclined to face an issue and have it over with, more easily and deeply wounded, prone to nurse their wounds.

Isn't it, I ask, a better way to save up irritations and talk them over with the ones concerned in a calm and logical manner than to keep picking at them with sly little disagreeable remarks, building up an atmosphere of friction and unrest?

And if the cause of complaint has nothing to do with others, if it springs from weariness or a headache or a dozen things which may grow off key in one's own body and mind, is it fair to wish those about you to feel exactly as you do because you don't feel right?

Selfishness—give the other fellow a chance; he has his troubles, too, you know.

Face Disfigured With Red Pimples Cuticura Healed

"My face was affected with pimples. They were hard, large and red, and festered and scaled over. The pimples itched very much, thereby causing me to scratch, and scratching caused eruptions. I lost considerable sleep on account of the irritation. The trouble lasted about eight months and disfigured my face.

"I tried different remedies without any benefit. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. After using it I purchased more, and in about three months I was healed." (Signed) Miss Helen G. Brown, 386 Hyde Park Ave., Roslindale, Mass., June 2, 1927.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS—

By HELEN ROWLAND

ALAS, my Daughter, how shall a man find contentment and heart-ease in a world full of women?

For, lo, his heart and his head are as a South American republic, forever at war! And, whatsoever woman holdeth sway over him, he sigheth always for "the other kind."

* * *

Go to. Every man longeth for two women in his life—one to guide and adore him and one to inspire and amuse him.

* * *

One to keep him busy—and one to keep him young.

* * *

One to pep him up—and one to hold him down.

One to tempt him—and one to save him.

* * *

One to jack up his ambition—and one to relax his spirit.

Behold, he wandereth always in search of his "Lilith" for diversion—but returneth always to his "Eve" for repentance and consolation.

* * *

When he is with "Lilith," the siren, he prayeth for strength and longeth for the steadying hand of Eve. But when he is with "Eve" he sigheth for Lilith, the diverting.

* * *

When he wearieth of kisses and petting, and jazz and laughter are as emptiness in his ears, then doth he yearn for the woman who will set his alarm clock and hearken to his alibis, bind up his head, soothe his conscience and get him to the office on time.

* * *

And when he wearieth of restraint and coddling and eternal vigilance, then doth he pine for the woman who will soothe his vanity, make him forget his tribulations, delight his senses, and fill his soul with laughter and merriment.

* * *

When his head acheth from too much wine and his feet from too much dancing, the safe-and-sane damsel appeareth as a ministering angel. Yes, she is as a cool drink of water after a hot milk.

* * *

But when his head is heavy from overwork and his feet are stiff from following the rocky path of duty, the light and carefree damsel is as a goblet of champagne after a dry dinner.

For not all a man's life can be one long Saturday night; neither can all his days be Sunday morning.

* * *

Yet so boundless is his optimism, so perfect his self-complaisance, that NO man doubteth, in his heart, that he can be all things to two women, and that any woman should be satisfied and delighted with HALF a love!

* * *

Happy the woman that is both EVE and LILITH!

SELAH.

When Pain Comes

Two hours after eating

What many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali in water will neutralize instantly many times as much acid, and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Go get a small bottle to try.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

BALTIMORE TO HAVE GREAT AIRPORT

By B. C. FORBES

BALTIMORE, June 12—Baltimore has planned the greatest airport in America—not merely and air field, but an airport to be created alongside the deep waters of Baltimore's seaport. A large part of the vast area mapped out now lies under water. The plan is to fill this in. The airport would include many acres of land immediately adjacent to the bay front. Abundant facilities lie at hand for the erection of industrial plants alongside the wide boundaries of the airport.

B. C. Forbes

The program calls for the expenditure of millions and will take several years to complete. The leading citizens are eager, however, to have all governmental and other red tape cleared away and a start made, so that Baltimore may be a leader airport-wise. The city already, of course, has its air field.

This ambitious airport program typifies the new spirit which has germinated in Baltimore after what strikes an outsider as a period not characterized by the aggressiveness signally exercised by Baltimoreans of earlier days. The city has been growing. Industrially, its growth since 1909 has been exceeded by only two among the ten leading cities in the country, namely, Detroit and Cleveland, beneficiaries of the lusty, young automobile industry.

But, somehow, Baltimore this century has not matched its pioneering, go-getting record of last century. Baltimore, for example, figured prominently in the birth of telegraphy. It figured prominently as the cradle of electric street cars. It early played a notable part in the copper industry.

The pioneers of last century developed Baltimore to a tremendously important merchandising and distributing center. Its wholesale houses became widely famous. It shipped enormous quantities of goods by land and by water, inland and overseas.

The sturdy pioneers of those days drew great wealth to Baltimore. Wealth, as often happens, stimulated the pursuit of culture. The unparalleled wealth of America since the war has led and is leading to the transfer of many of the choicest art objects of Europe to our own land. Having become rich, many Baltimoreans became interested in the finer things of life. Ditto second generation individuals and families.

While wealth stimulates culture, it often dulls the edge of industry. The world's pioneers usually have been poor men. Those having little or nothing to lose cheerfully undertake risks. They brave hazards in the hope of generous financial rewards. John D. Rockefeller took all sorts of chances in his younger days, but wealth brought conservatism.

Similarly, Baltimore's wealth brought conservatism. More money went into safe investments; a lessened proportion was devoted to speculation, the speculation always attendant upon pioneering.

Baltimore thus became more noted for culture, for music, for art, for poetry, for refinement, for finer living than for industrial or commercial initiative and daring. It cultivated culture more than it cultivated money-making. Its society became more noted than its material achievements.

Had the automobile industry been born two or three generations ago, Baltimore probably would have become an important motor manufacturing city. It has not become conspicuously an automobile center nor an electric manufacturing center nor a radio center nor a rayon center nor an aircraft center.

I have already seen enough to convince me, however, that Baltimore is now undergoing rebirth.

Radio Dialog

JOHN HANCOCK'S astuteness as a lover was in inverse ratio to his gifts as a statesman, it appears. The story of his love for Dorothy Quincy, which threatened to go on the rocks as a result of the well-intentioned scheming of her father and his aunt, will be played for radio listeners in the Socony Hour at 7:30 tonight. The scenes are laid in Quincy, Lexington and Woburn, and the battle of Lexington and Concord figure in the action.

Revery

DREAMY dream songs will be sung by the Seiberling Singers tonight . . . "Was it a Dream?" . . . "Traumerei," . . . "Little Log Cabin of Dreams." . . . Perle Barti, soprano, and Willard Robinson will sing in the Eveready Hour . . . Ballads and dance tunes are listed on the Eskimo program, with Tschaikowsky's "Pique Dame" overture plunked into the middle, right after "You Have No Idea . . ."

First Goldman Concert

GODFREY LUDLOW, violinist of the sweet tone, will share honors with the male quartet in the Stromberg-Carlson broadcast at 8 through WJZ and WBZ. The first of the Goldman Band concerts will be heard through the same stations commencing at 8:30, opening with Schubert's "Marche Militaire."

From Nine to Eleven

LA PALINA and The Buccaneers combine tonight for a new series of La Palina 60-minute broadcasts through the Columbia System at 9 o'clock. "Come to the Fair," at 10 o'clock, draws its program from music of Ireland, England, Wales, Norway, Germany, Scotland, Hungary, France and Spain. The Welsh number is an old tune, "March of the Men of Harlech," sung by a male quartet.

Lower Prices

REPORTS from the Chicago Radio Manufacturers' Convention and Radio Show indicate a substantial reduction in the prevailing prices of standard radio sets. Prices are generally 20 per cent lower than last year. A. C. or house current sets are listed at $78, $86, and $106. Battery sets are $49 and $69, and three models of loud speakers are listed at $20 each.

Grebe Has S.-W. Receiver

A NEW short-wave receiver employing the new screen-grid tubes, completely shielded and adapted for narrow or wide frequency band reception is announced by A. H. Grebe & Co. The significance of the narrow or wide frequency reception ability lies in the fact that television requires a wide wave band. The set is known as the CR-19 Short-Wave Receiver. It employs five tubes as follows: One type 222 screen grid in radio frequency stage, a 201A detector, two hi-Mu's and a 112A or other power tube.

Statler Exhibit

THE COMPLETE line of new Freed Eisemann receiving sets displayed at the Chicago Show is duplicated in an exhibit being held at the Statler Hotel, Boston, this week. The display was opened yesterday morning and will remain until Thursday night. The hours are 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.

Giving Their Boost to Power

FRANK BOHN, writer:

"The law allows a reasonable maximum return to the investor in a public utility. Usually it is eight per cent. Let an efficient commission make certain that the public is fully protected. With that result taken for granted, let me ask a question: If you, as the consumer, balance that eight per cent against all the waste and inefficiency of political management, on which side will you look for the cheaper rates and better service?

"We must say to the captains of our electrical industry that they will not be hampered. Let us assure them that they will not be embarrassed by tax-supported competition; above all, let us give over that dog-in-the-manger policy under which government, unable and unwilling to develop these resources itself, denies the benefit of their use to the public.

"This vast new machinery, these utterly changed physical conditions, are only a means to a more precious end. The ultimate picture must be seen with the eyes of the spirit. Released from drudgery, released from poverty our whole people can, if they will, find their way upward. The new map of our country awaits the finishing strokes—the new age listens for the word of leadership of the greater artists of a people's destiny."

PROFESSOR PHILIP CABOT, of the Harvard School of Business Administration:

"The phrase 'power trust' is well calculated to alarm the average voter because of its implication of hateful monopoly in what has now become a necessity of his life. And the damage does not stop there; one of the greatest industries in the land is being seriously, perhaps permanently, injured. This industry requires for its successful development the most skillful and far-sighted planning, and the imaginative courage only to be found in a few leaders of men. Such men have been found, and have developed this industry with such amazing success that it is one of the main contributing factors in our present remarkable prosperity.

"In the business of producing electric power monopoly under Government regulation has been our standard practice for more than a generation, and this talk about the danger of a power monopoly can hardly be believed by those who talk most loudly of it. Monopoly in the production of our utility services is decreed by the law of every State in the Union, and the most elaborate statutory provision has been made to regulate both service and prices.

"Certainly from the consumer's point of view the situation is ideal. He is protected by the power of the State against all forms of extortion, and the whole energy of the electric power industry is set to work inventing methods for reducing costs, reducing prices, and increasing output."

FLIERS SPEED PLANS TO SAVE NOBILE CREW

(Copyrighted, 1928, by the Associated Press.)

King's Bay, Spitzbergen, June 12 (AP)—At least some of the crew of the dirigible Italia, stranded on the ice pack north of Spitzbergen, faced a crisis today as Captain Riiser-Larsen and Lieut. Luetzow Holm, Norwegian aviators, rushed preparations to bring them aid.

With three of the crew definitely missing, and possibly lost, and the rest of the explorers divided into two parties drifting on an ice floe westward toward land, the utmost speed was used today to reach the stranded groups.

Two men arrived at Mossel Bay early this morning with gasoline for Lieut. Holm, who was stranded at that place after a five-day reconnaissance during most of which he had been forced to wait idly because of fog and unfavorable ice conditions.

As soon as the Norwegian air man received the gasoline he flew to the sealer Hobby and went into conference with Capt. Riiser-Larsen preparatory to making a new series of flights in an effort to find the missing men.

SIGHT NONE OF CREW

He reported that he had sighted none of the Italia's crew during his search.

Fine flying weather prevailed and the two pilots who have had much experience in northern waters, planned to fly eastward as soon as possible searching the pack ice for the Italia's parties. If the men should be found, the aviators will drop messages and provisions.

Two Italian planes with 30-hour cruising ability are expected late this week to assist the Norwegians in dashes over the ice fields. The Italian plane, starting from Kings Bay, will fly up the west coast and will then go directly east to the spot where the Italia was wrecked.

MAY FACE STARVATION

It is feared that at least some of the Italia's crew may soon face starvation if the rescuers do not reach them quickly. It is now the third week for the stranded exploring party on the treacherous pack ice and their provisions are reduced despite careful rationing.

In addition to the problem of conserving their food supply, the Italia's men must take care of their two companions whose legs were broken when the gondola of the airship was broken off on May 25 when the Italia tried to land. The injured men were with the party of six which is being personally led by Gen. Umberto Nobile.

The group of three men who became separated from the Italia trying to reach land, undoubtedly is facing tremendous difficulties.

Crossing the ice pack, they must go over a zigzag route at a very slow pace and the distance gained by hard work on one day may be lost on the next day by movement of the ice. They also may encounter stretches of open water and have to seek a circuitous route toward land.

If these men should be close to land in the vicinity of Rips Bay or Dover Bay, they may be able to get ashore, for the terrain is flat at these points.

FIND BODY OF RADIO MAN

In the midst of the hunt for the crew of the Italia today came word of another tragedy of the inhospitable Arctic seas.

The body of the regular Spitzbergen radio operator, who perished in a snowstorm on April 15, was found under the snow on an ice pack near the shore. He had been caught in a sudden storm while along the shore and had since been missing.

RIOT IN AMERICAN PLANT IN GREECE; ONE MAN SLAIN

Athens, June 12 (AP)—Serious rioting, in which one person was killed and several wounded occurred today at the Kavala headquarters of the American Tobacco Company, where employes are on strike. The strikers stoned the gendarmerie and soldiers and shots were exchanged. The government took measures to restore order today.

ALAN CROSLAND AND HIS ACTRESS WIFE REUNITED

Hollywood, Cal., June 12 (AP)—Alan Crosland, motion picture director, and his wife, Mrs. Juanita Leanore Crosland, former stage actress, today revealed they had effected a reconciliation after a separation of 14 months. Mrs. Crosland arrived with her 10-year-old son from New York.

UTILITIES LINE UP EMPLOYES FOR BATTLE

Washington, June 12 (INS)—Propagandists are mustering the hundreds of thousands of utility employes over the country into one great army to fight all projects involving public ownership and quell public criticism of rates and service, Federal trade commission records showed today.

Influence exerted by employes of all classes through personal friendships and talent for public speaking is lauded in reports and letters taken from propaganda files of the so-called power trust.

Vast numbers of women have been used in these activities in New York, Illinois, and many other states. Wives of power company executives and employes took part, as well as women employees. They joined clubs, made speeches, acted as hostesses, and in some instances spied on women's organizations.

Talent for propaganda was put forward in a report from the Rocky Mountain committee files, as a "new standard" for workers. "The utilities must adopt a new standard in employing people," said the document. They must begin to recruit employes on the basis of how many friends they can make for the company.

Large numbers of "the best utility department heads and assistants" were trained for public speaking, said another report. Several of the companies have been devoting most of their time to this work.

The outlay for this sort of "work" is all charged up to "operating expenses," according to testimony before the commission. Rates charged consumers are authorized to cover these expenses, plus the stockholders' profit.

Roads as an Investment

This Type of Improvement Will Make Peace Pay Its Best Dividends

The United States Good Roads Association, at its recent convention in Des Moines, strongly endorsed a bill to create a nation-wide system of first-class hard surfaced roads connecting every State capital with the capital of the nation at Washington.

This bill, known as the Holaday bill, would involve an outlay of $2,850,000,000, spread over five years, to lay 57,000 miles of paved roadway at least twenty feet wide.

It would provide five transcontinental east and west trunk line highways and two from the Great Lakes to the Pacific Coast. It would also provide two coastwise highways skirting the waterfront and two diagonal routes, one running from Montana to the seaboard at Jacksonville, Fla., and one from El Paso, Tex., to Lake Ontario.

These highways, when near large cities, would be widened to accommodate four to six lanes of traffic. There would also be belt lines by which through travelers could detour around the traffic congestion in cities. The trunk roads would be as straight as engineering skill could make them. Spurs would connect with cities along their way.

The proposal as drawn would put the cost wholly on the Federal Government, to be recouped by an annual motor vehicle tax and a small gasoline tax, all other Federal taxes on motor vehicles to be repealed. It is estimated that sufficient revenue would thus be realized to retire the road bonds by which the construction costs would be financed and to leave a fund for maintenance.

Counting in the extra cost of the wider highways near the cities and the belt lines, the program would require a bonding of about five thousand million dollars at the rate of a thousand millions a year. But at the end of five years it would give the greatest network of good roads ever known. It would, moreover, stimulate the construction of connecting secondary roads, thus revolutionizing travel and motor transport.

It looks like a grandiose proposal, but it is not. It is rather an investment in comfort, convenience and prosperity that would repay itself almost from the start.

We threw far greater sums into war blindly and got nothing back. This type of internal improvement is what we need to make peace pay its best dividends.

A Cosmic Cataclysm

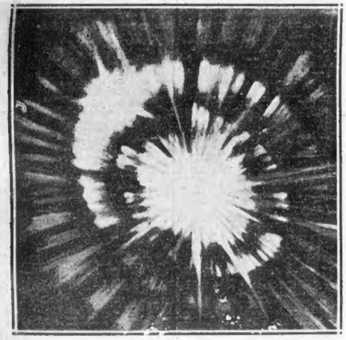
It Happened 500 Years Ago



A BIG STAR SPLIT IN TWO

This is the scientific astronomer's idea of what happened when the giant star Nova Pictoris split in two, five hundred years ago.

Those who do not realize that you cannot see a thing until the light has time to TRAVEL FROM THAT THING TO YOUR EYE may be puzzled by the statement that an event just seen by the astronomers happened 500 years ago. The explanation is simple. It takes light, which carries pictures to our eye, 500 years to come through space from the distant Nova Pictoris.

Light travels 186,000 miles a second, and comes to the earth from our sun, 93,000,000 miles away, in eight minutes.

You can figure for yourself how far Nova Pictoris must be from this earth if it takes the light going 186,000 miles a second 500 years to travel from a star to our earth and show the astronomer with his telescope what happened 500 years before, when the great star split in two.

Concerning this collision or explosion in interstellar space, the learned Mr. Scriven Bolton writes in connection with this picture for the London Illustrated News:

"The new star, Nova Pictoris, which flared up into existence in the southern hemisphere in 1925, has apparently split in two. During the three years of its visibility it has exhibited some mysterious fluctuations in brightness. Although this celestial upheaval occurred some 500 years ago, the rays of light then dispatched across the vast gulf of space have only just arrived to tell the tale. It is the first recorded instance of a star having become double. There are several theories to account for the apparent 'split.' One is that the star has actually been torn asunder by some external influence; while another explains the phenomenon as due to a collision or a graze with a wandering body. No such event, however, is on record, nor is it likely to happen in the future. A more reasonable theory, perhaps, is that Nova Pictoris collided with a vast cloud of dust, the friction therewith raising the star to incandescence, and causing a succession of violent explosions. As shown in the above hypothetical picture, the star probably became enshrouded in concentric rings of exploded matter. The solid particles of one such ring may have already coalesced into a brilliant 'knot,' or secondary star, which, today, is seen from the earth as a close companion to the parent sun. This mighty upheaval is so far away in space—billions of miles—that no telescope is powerful enough to tell how the catastrophe happened." Another theory is a collision between two dead stars. Two comets, it is said, have been known to split.

Fortunately for our peace of mind, on this little earth, col-

PROGRESS IN STUDY OF THE BIBLE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A NEW analytical reference Bible, just put out, marks a significant step in the progress of Bible study.

It is a far cry from the day when the investigating student had to read the Scriptures for himself and look up all the literature bearing upon the subject, and today, when the modern student has such a book as this in question before him.

This Bible, first of all, gives us the authorized English version of the Scriptures. This version will probably never be excelled, not because of its accuracy, but because of its literary beauty. It has become one of the standards that fix the English language. It is one of the landmarks of the English tongue. No efforts to improve this translation have ever been quite successful because what they have gained in accuracy they have lost in dramatic beauty.

Along with this text the book presents all sorts of Bible helps.

There is an analysis of the Bible, taking up the various subjects mentioned in the book, there are excellent illustrations and maps. All the results of the research of years have been boiled down in preparing these helps.

You can find out easily by means of this analysis all that the Bible teaches on any subject.

In the back of the book is a condensation of Cruden's Concordance, the best concordance known, so that remembering any word of a text you can find the passage in which that word occurs.

This modern Bible ought to forestall any more bizarre and curious fad-making out of detached and incoherent texts of Scripture.

All the light of modern scholarship and learning has been concentrated here upon the words of this remarkable book.

Even today the Bible is the most widely read and probably the most valuable work in existence. No book in the world compares with it in influence and importance. Whether you believe it or not you cannot deny its extraordinary effect upon human thinking.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I'M banking on the Resurrection Day.

Life, so far has done me considerable dirt, but I'm counting on old Gabriel and his trump to even up the score. From my previous experiences with resurrection, I'll bet it will do a plenty.

Naturally, I have not, as yet, attended a heavenly resurrection. But I was present at an earthly one which functioned with 100 per cent efficiency. I refer to the Big Earthquake in California.

Prior to that event large numbers of our leading citizens had been putting on a lot of dog. And getting by with it. But when Mamma Earth up and did her stuff at 5 a. m., their bluff was called. And how!

As you may remember, it was an impromptu affair. We met, by unanimous consent in the middle of the streets. The guests arrived in haste—heaps of haste—but not much else. And believe me, dearie, no judgment day will ever put on a better show than was assembled in about 47 seconds on that dewey April morn.

We were sans teeth, sans hair, sans shapes, sans complexions and—in a number of cases—sans wardrobe. And, let me add, certain embarrassed gents were also sans reputation. But, at the moment, reputations didn't count. For once, all men were equals and all corn plasters looked alike.

You couldn't tell a bank president from a peanut butcher. I had always suspected there wasn't much difference, anyway, and that morning proved it.

And, for once, the cigarette girls and the usherettes hogged the spotlight, while the grand dames did a fade-out. But no one bore a grudge. What was a mislaid toupee or a varicose vein between friends?

Afterward, however, when we began remembering—and speculating—and wondering—and putting two and two together—what a ha-ha went up and down the whole Pacific Coast!

For which reason I'm counting on the Resurrection Day. They may pick on me now, but I and the other under-dogs will have our innings!

What a sorting out and shaking up and laying low is going to take place amongst the Illustrious Dead when they have to hustle out with nothing on but their thoughts.

A whole lot of those Pure Pris-

AWAKE!!
AWAKE!
AWAKE

cillas are going to look like first rate garbage cans, or I'll miss my guess.

And what a bunch of blanks some of us will seem when we've got to parade around without our bank rolls.

But what tickles me most is that I'll see my editors raw—glory hallelujah! And what a razz I'll give them for the times they've high-hatted me!

I've been reading up what it says in the Bible about the Judgment Day and it certainly promises a lot of lively punishments. But I think the worst judgment that can really happen to any of us will be to have the rest of the gang see us as we really are. And if it wasn't that my own little bluff would be called, too, I'd certainly pray for the Resurrection Day to come tomorrow morning.

New York Day by Day

by O.O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, June 12—Perhaps no city in America responds so enthusiastically to a parade as New York. It costs Fifth ave. merchants thousands a year as a result of the suspension of business while paraders go marching by.

There are countless New Yorkers who, if given a uniform, will march themselves ga-ga. The parade is a definite part of the metropolitan consciousness—the irresistible urge to be noticed. Men of heavy affairs will slam down their desk tops to wear a plumed hat.

The parade is such an attraction here it has been seized upon by press agents as a method of exploiting subtly certain propaganda for which they have been retained. In the past year two of these spectacular stunts have been engineered.

New York seems divided between those eager to parade and those just as eager to watch from the sidelines. Spectators will began lining Fifth ave. curbs before daylight on the day a parade is scheduled to march. Weather will not interfere.

Merchants board up plate glass windows and rope off entrance ways. Ambulances are often waiting in side streets off every block. Windows offering an excellent view are sold at enormous figures. Even speculators make their bit out of salable space.

Rooftops and window ledges drip with a goggle-eyed humanity. There have been innumerable accidents among those who dropped from perilous positions while waiting for a parade to pass. Indeed, a parade is about the only thing that makes New York pause in its mad rush.

It will cheer itself hoarse and go home exhausted in hysterical happiness. During the Lindbergh welcome parade it was discovered an hour after the parade passed there was not a telephone book left in the biggest downtown skyscraper. They had been frantically torn up to use as confetti.

TENTH ave. in the Forties is in the grip of a usual summer desolation. The picturesque characters who trail the circuses and street carnivals have departed from their customary haunts. Tenth ave. is their winter quarters and they will not be seen until fall.

Despite their migratory calling, most of them are uncannily thrifty, and come back to town with sufficient funds to butter over jobless days. There are restaurants along the street that are the rendezvous for clowns, acrobats, wire walkers and such.

And others patronized almost exclusively by shills, thimble riggers, barkers and others of the fly-by-night herd who thrive on human gullibility. There is also a boarding house for human freaks.

ON Tenth ave. there is what is known as "sawdust aristocracy." Certain groups maintain a rigid aloofness from other groups. In some circles it would be known as class consciousness. Yet in distress, all are eager to lend a helping hand to their fellows.

SOMEONE writes to ask if they did not meet me at the Gallipolis, O., centennial celebration in 1890. I don't remember. That was the year I got a buttonhook fastened in my nose.

A Cosmic Cataclysm

lisions or explosions, like the one shown in this hypothetical picture, happen rarely. But, they DO happen.

Separated by billions and trillions of miles, great suns hit each other occasionally, just as ocean steamships occasionally collide.

There is an interesting story of a big turtle asleep on the surface of the Pacific Ocean. It had the whole ocean on which to sleep, but a big passenger steamer came along crossing from California to Japan, hit that turtle in the middle and killed it.

Such things can happen in the vast spaces through which our big sun rolls, carrying our earth and other little planets with it.

If it ever happens to our sun one thing is certain—none of us would ever know it. Death for all of us would be instantaneous, and we'd all wake up in the other world together.

Because it does NOT happen, because we know that our earth has traveled through space safely for at least a thousand million years, because we know the sun will continue to warm the earth and make human life on it possible for a hundred million years to come and more, we should be GRATEFUL.

Elocution

Candidates for high office would be wise to begin voice culture soon. Not the kind that builds a bellowing roar or goes with the practice of gesticulation before a mirror.

The radio has ended all that. Its prizes are for the speaker who can enunciate clearly, put his thoughts over with a certain cadence and—most important of all—have something to say.

People at mass meetings, reacting to mob fervor, may once have endured spread-eagle ranting. But no man or woman, in the privacy of home, will turn the dial for it.

This coming campaign will develop a new technique in public speaking. It will mark the beginning of a revival of intelligent elocution.
